POOR OLD UNCLE SAM didn't start the war, and it cost him dozens of billions, yet it seems impossible for him to get free from it.

Our General Dawes as was predicted here, helps to bring in a report that says to Uncle Sam, "Pay, please."

IT SEEMS that Germany must have a loan, to get started on reparations. She asked for twenty-five hundred millions. She is to have two hundred and fifty millions, if plans go through.

"All nations, including this, will contribute to that loan, and all will be expected to squeeze Germany, if she does not pay."

THAT'S the program thus far. Later, when Germany, having bought raw materials, gets her breath and starts paying reparations, will Uncle Sam get part of the reparations?

DON'T ASK FOOLISH QUESTIONS. CERTAINLY NOT!

BUT, IN CASE Germany fails to pay the fancy reparations, Uncle Sam may have another chance to make himself useful. As he lent Germany part of the money she needed, what more reasonable than for him to help pay the reparations in case Germany skips payments?

That is the plan, and you will see it materialize.

THE BIG Anaconda Copper Company skipped its regular dividend yesterday. That frightened the market, knocked down Anaconda stock and many other stocks that "sold off in sympathy." You'll hear some ma ket expert announce gloomily that must be expected if demagogues finalst on Senatorial investigations that interfere with big business.

On the other hand, American Locomotive had its best year, with a net profit of more than twelve millions, a profit above $21 per share.

AMERICAN LOCOMOTIVE sells around $74, while Canadian Pacific, paying $10 per share, to the same crowd of American speculators at $200. How do you explain that? Do you investors consider the Canadians better managers, or more honest, or what?

THERE OUGHT to be no skipping of dividends by copper companies, and would not be, if the public understood the value of copper and brass, and if architects and builders would serve their clients faithfully, instead of using trashy, rusting iron, to lower prices. Copper and brass in building would save tens of millions a year in repairs, for they last indefinitely. Using galvanized iron in water pipes is wasteful folly.

FIVE NUNS, Little Sisters of the Poor, were detained at Ellis Island because the immigration quota of their native country was exhausted.

They are now admitted, under a special ruling, as teachers. The public will welcome that ruling, since it saves five good women from deportation. What about the mother with five children, cruelly sent back to Europe a few days ago? Could not some special ruling have been made, to admit her as a MOTHER? Is there any higher calling than that of mother, in the estimation of our government?

MRS. BRAWNER, very rich, dies and leaves $1,476,138 to her infant son. Her older children get, each, only half as much.

That sounds unjust, but it re-

WHITE HOUSE WORKERS TIPPED FALL ON PROBE

GIRL BALKS AT RETURN HOME

Marion Pierce Gives Up Luxurious Existence Because of Colored Maid

Marion Pierce of Brookline, blonde foster child of a wealthy woman who owns several Rockport hotels, is living in Salem with the family of a trolley motorman and has definitely given up her Brookline home and her allowance of $200 a month.

And all because she says a colored maid talked about her she conducted herself with young men in her home.

"I'm all through and I'll never return to Brookline" the girl said today.

"That negro maid is Mabel Watts and the way she talked about my conduct with boy friends in the house was terrible. I just couldn't stand it any more so here I am and I'm not going back."

WAS PENNILESS.

Miss Pierce, who is twenty-four, is living with the family of James Clapper at No. 1 Winter street, Salem. Clapper is employed by the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway. Miss Pierce formed an acquaintance with several of his daughters some months back.

When the Brookline girl left her sumptuous home she was penniless.

"I didn't have any money and I left two valuable diamond rings behind," she said.

"I had to go to some friends in Brookline and borrow money last Friday. Then I came here."

DATE HER UP.

The interview at the Clapper home was interrupted by a telephone call for the girl.

"It's just one of my boy friends and he wants to date me up," she explained.

The girl was located by a private detective who had a "hot tip" that the missing Frances Slovak was at the Salem motorman's house. He reported to the authorities that the girl was Miss Pierce.

Incidentally, the house in which the girl is sleeping is said to be the property of Dennis McCarthy, a houseman in the employ of her foster mother at No. 48 Park street, Brookline.

"That has nothing to do with the case in any way," snapped Miss Pierce when asked about it.

According to Brookline's blondes runaway, her few days in Salem have been the most interesting in her life.

"Whoever started the story that Salem is a quaint old New England town, and a veritable Sleepy Hollow," the girl told a reporter for the American, "didn't know half

Alaska Coal land Greatest Scandal, Says Pinchot

New York, Feb. 27.—Gifford Pinchot, Governor of Pennsylvania, today declared the coal land scandal in Alaska would overshadow the Teapot Dome oil sensation.

"The oil scandal," he said, is an effort by the opposition to break through the conservative policies established by Roosevelt."

CARDINAL DUE HOME BY LAST OF MARCH

Prelate Now on Way to Pay Pope Visit; Sails for the U. S. March 13

Naples, Feb. 27.—Cardinal O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston, arrived here today on the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Scotland. The prelate was accompanied by Rt. Rev. Mgr. M. J. Splaine and Rt. Rev. Richard J. Haberlin, his companions on the pilgrimage to the Holy Land.

Cardinal O'Connell left the ship when she arrived here and started immediately for Rome, where he will make his ad lima visit to the Holy Father, required to be made every five years by all bishops of the Roman Catholic church.

Cardinal O'Connell

The Cardinal bade goodbye to fellow voyagers who were on the ship from the time she left New York January 14 until arrival here today. He made a profound impression on everybody with whom he came in contact during the trip.

On landing here the Cardinal expressed his pleasure at again being on his way to the Eternal City.

"When my work in Rome is done," he said, "I shall be glad to get back to Boston."

It is expected the prelate will have an audience with Pope Pius XI very soon after his arrival in Rome. While in Rome he will visit the North American College, over which he once presided.

He will also visit the titular church of St. Clement, one of the most famous churches in the Italian capital. The Cardinal is assured a royal welcome from the Irish Dominican Fathers, who are in charge of the church.

According to Cardinal O'Connell's present intention, he will embark here on the Francesnia, homeward bound, March 13. The liner is due in New York March 27.

The cardinal and his party are all well.

BAN PEEK-A-BOO WAISTS IN GERMANY

Berlin, Feb. 27.—Peek-a-boo waists have been banned by the Minister of Finance of the Berlin district in the "interest of economy." The decree, which was the first of its kind here, caused a sensation among the several thousand municipal employes.

Women when at work in the bureaus, says the edict, must have the chest and lower part of the neck covered.

HEIRESS TO MARRY CLERK

Engagement Bares Romance of Poor Widow Left $4,000,000 by Searles

Lawrence, Feb. 27.—Mrs. Mary R. Rowland, widow of a poor Philadelphia hat salesman, who four years ago stepped into a share of millions of the late Edward F. Searles, is to marry a Methuen automobile clerk.

Announcement of the engagement of the wealthy mistress of Pine Lodge, the magnificent estate at Methuen, to Edward F. Byrnes was made today. The date of the wedding was not given.

Byrnes is listed in the Methuen directory as an "automobile accountant" and little is known of him in this section except that he was graduated from Harvard in 1906, and that for a number of years he has been in the employ of an automobile concern.

The story of Mrs. Rowland rivals that of Cinderella.

HAD A HARD TIME.

The daughter of a Philadelphia editor, who died thirty-two years ago, she married Benjamin H. Rowland, salesman for a Quaker City hat company. They had three children and struggled to make ends meet.

In the Summer of 1920 the father and husband was taken ill and died, leaving his family with little or nothing save a small home in Melrose, a suburb of Philadelphia.

Three weeks after the husband's funeral Mrs. Rowland was almost overcome with amazement when she was informed by Boston lawyers that she and her sons had been left approximately $4,000,000 and a Massachusetts estate, the manor of which was filled with art treasures and priceless furnishings.

RELATED TO SEARLES.

The bequest was made in the will of Edward F. Searles, eccentric multi-millionaire of Methuen, and a cousin of Mrs. Rowland's father.

The will provided that the estate was to go to the eldest son and to his heirs without interference from the executors or from any other parties to the will.

In the will, Albert Victor Searles, Boston artist and a nephew of the Methuen eccentric, was cut off with $250,000. Subsequently he had this provision set aside and received about $1,000,000.

The will also contained another clause—that the Rowland children should take the name of Searles.

In due course of time the widow and her children took over the Methuen estate and have since resided there, awaited upon by an army of flunkies and servants. The elder Searles obligingly provided a fund of $1,000,000 for the maintenance of the children and the home.

The shock with which the residents of this section learned that a poor widow was to become the mistress of Pine Lodge was only second to the surprise that greeted the announcement of the engagement of Mrs. Rowland to the comparatively unknown Byrnes.

Both are well on to middle age and there was no one in Methuen that even remotely suspected that the widow had the slightest interest in anybody or anything save her three boys, who are now at school.

RISKS LIFE IN SHIP BLAST

HERO MANSON AND FREIGHTER TRELYON

Manson, second engineer of the ship, although shaken and dazed by the explosion, crawled over a hot grating and shut off the steam where Oscar Halstrom, an oiler, was lying. Manson's face was badly blistered in the attempt and Halstrom was dead when rescuers reached him. Photo above shows the ship, with clouds of steam escaping, after the boiler blew up.

SOUTH BOSTON EXPLOSION KILLS ONE

Another Man Badly Hurt as Boiler on Ship Blows Up at Army Pier

Explosion of a steam boiler on the British steamship Trelyon at the Army Pier in South Boston today killed one man, injured a second badly, and hurled several other members of the crew from their feet.

The explosion occurred an hour before the freighter, owned by the Ham line, was due to leave for New York. She had finished unloading wool after arriving here from Australia.

Live steam swirling in the boiler room and bunkers blocked a heroic attempt of one of the crew to reach the side of the man killed and even members of Rescue Company No. 1 of the fire department, equipped with gas masks, could not endure the searing steam.

The injured are:

William Cox, coal passer, badly lacerated leg.

Frederick Manson, second engineer, bad burns about the face.

Halstrom is believed to have been

SOUTH END MAN STABBED AND LEFT TO DIE

Unconscious From 4 Wounds and Gas Flowing From Open Jet When Found

George Donahue, thirty-four, a lodger in Rollins street, South End, was found unconscious in his room today, bleeding from four stab wounds.

A file and a knife, both blood stained, were at his side. Gas was flowing from an open jet in the room. Two stab wounds gaped in his neck and two more were in the region of the heart. In addition he bore bruises on his face.

Samuel Petroni, son of the landlord, who found the body, called Dr. Harry E. Bonyman, who worked over Donahue.

Donahue was then removed to the City Hospital where his name was placed on the danger list.

Every person in the house was questioned.

M'LEAN'S MAN GOT 'INSIDE'

Secret Service Agent Also Sent Information on Oil to Palm Beach

Washington, Feb. 27.—Telegrams sent to Edward B. McLean, A. B. Fall and others at Palm Beach, Fla., and relevant to the oil inquiry, were read into the record today of the Oil Committee.

The first, from John Major at Washington to McLean at Palm Beach, suggested a leased wire from the Washington Post to McLean's cottage in Florida so the publisher could have "easy and quick access to the White House."

The message said also that C. Bascom Slemp, secretary to the President, would be in Florida shortly.

Another message from Major to McLean said that Major had "had a talk with Smithers at the White House."

In another message Major told McLean he had talked again with "J. W. Zevely, Palmer's law partner, who said the matter would be attended to in a manner satisfactory to you."

WHITE HOUSE OPERATOR.

Major is an employe of McLean here and E. W. Smithers is chief telegrapher at the White House.

Another message said Fred Starek, a director of the War Finance Corporation, was anxious to get in touch with McLean on an important matter.

"Palmer and Zevely told me to-night that under no circumstances should you send a message to the committee," said another message to McLean from Major.

"They said" the message added, "that after the man at Wardman Park Public hotel testifies and the committee wanted you, they could take care of you."

A message from the White House signed "E. W. Starling" and addressed to McLean said Starling had "served Wilkins at Hopkinsville, Ky." (Starling is of the White House secret service staff.)

Major reported to McLean that he

Tracing Fall's Phone Call From New Orleans

Washington, Feb. 27 (I.N.S.).—The Senate Public Lands committee today continued its search behind closed doors for additional sensation in the naval oil scandal.

Copies of telegrams for three of the central figures in the investigation—Ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall, E. L. Doheny, and E. H. McLean—again were under inspection.

In addition, Senator Walsh notified officials of the local telephone company to be present to give a record of telephone calls from Washington to Palm Beach and New Orleans for any of the three men.

The object of this was to ascertain whether any officials of the Government or any members of the committee transmitted secret information to any of the witnesses in the inquiry.

In summoning telephone officials, Walsh wants to determine what Fall meant when in New Orleans, after the testimony of Archie Roosevelt, he said he had been in communication by long distance telephone with "a member of the committee."

The committee planned to be in short session today because of the memorial services for the late President Harding in the House this afternoon.

Tomorrow however, the investigation will be resumed in open session in full blast. Four witnesses have been called. G. D. Wahlberg, former private secretary to Harry F. Sinclair, McLean, Karl C. Schuyler of Denver, attorney for J. Lee Stack; and Henry Woodhouse, magazine writer, who in a recent article described Doheny's companies had a contract to furnish oil from the Elk Hills reserve to the British government.

Smoot Knew in Advance of Doheny's Loan to Fall

Washington, Feb. 27.—Senator Smoot of Utah, former chairman of the oil committee, disclosed publicly today that he was advised in advance that E. L. Doheny was coming to Washington to testify about his $100,000 loan to Albert B. Fall.

The Senator said he received the information from Colonel J. W. Zevely, personal counsel to Harry F. Sinclair, who was at New Orleans at the time of the Fall loan.

Smoot denied he had been in telegraphic communication with Fall since that former Secretary announced in December that he had received $100,000 loan from Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post.

Mystery in Tools Sent U. S. Labor Secretary

Washington, Feb. 27.—Secretary of Labor Davis has a set of stone cutter's tools and is in a quandary. They arrived Saturday in a neat package, triple padlocked and were followed by a set of keys to open the locks.

Accompanying the keys was a rambling letter from a Philadelphian man saying the tools were "useless to me as organized labor in the building industry wants to deprive me of existing by my labor."

DAUGHERTY WILL QUIT IF TOLD BY COOLIDGE

Conference at White House Indicates Resignation Before Tomorrow Night

Washington, Feb. 27.—President Coolidge has offered Attorney General Daugherty the alternative of retiring voluntarily from the Cabinet or being ordered to resign, it was learned from official White House sources today.

Washington, Feb. 27.—Attorney-General Daugherty announced after another conference today with President Coolidge that a statement would be made before night regarding his retention in the Cabinet.

Party leaders close to the President are confident the Attorney-General has decided to send in his resignation. The only uncertainty is as to the date of his withdrawal.

Daugherty declined to discuss the matter publicly, but it was said he doubted it would be issued at the White House or the Department of Justice.

White House officials said the President did not care to authorize statements for publication at present.

CONFERRED AN HOUR

The conference between the President and the Attorney-General lasted more than an hour.

Daugherty arrived at the executive offices immediately after breakfast. It was assumed the President informed the Attorney General of the opinion expressed by those who took part in the round table session of last night.

Daugherty spent two hours with Mr. Coolidge last night, and, after he left, the whole subject was reviewed at a conference between the President, Secretary Slemp, Frank W. Stearns of Boston, a close friend, and William M. Butler, manager of the Coolidge presidential campaign.

Previously Daugherty had offered to retire if guaranteed a public hearing in the charges made against him.

Throughout the last 48 hours he stood between a cross fire—the Republicans in the Senate and the colleagues in the cabinet who have advised him to eliminate himself.

On the best of authority it is learned he has put his case in this definite statement to the President:

"If you ask me to, I will resign.

"If my presence in the cabinet embarrasses you, I will resign.

"But I do not intend to be sacrificed. The request must come and with it the assurance that I will be given every opportunity to vindicate myself."

AN EASY WAY OUT

It was suggested to Daugherty that he could resign and at the same time defend himself by doing so. By this plan his retirement at a date sufficiently ahead to allow plenty of time for a complete hearing of the charges by the senatorial committee proposed in the Wheeler resolution.

To this suggestion the Attorney-General is understood to have told the President that his retirement will simply mean the Democrats in the Senate will centre their attack on still another member of President Coolidge's official family. He pointed out that Senator Heflin, on the floor of the Senate yesterday, declared that "Mellon and Weeks were next."

Whether Daugherty's retirement from the Cabinet would affect his position as a delegate-at-large from Ohio to the Cleveland convention was regarded as problematical. President Coolidge only Saturday gave his endorsement to the slate, of which the Attorney-General is one.

SENATE IN R. I. IS HELD UP BY FILIBUSTER

Democrats Block Business All Night to Force Action on Hospital Bill

Providence, Feb. 27.—Long passages from Shakespeare, many pages of the Bible, and the history of Rhode Island were recited by Democratic Senators all through the night as means of holding the floor in a filibuster that has lasted nearly twenty-four hours and may last for days.

The Senate was still deadlocked at noon today. At 11 o'clock Lieutenant-Governor Toupin called a recess of one hour.

When the session was called to order again the Democrats returned with faces wreathed in smiles. During the recess the Lieutenant-Governor's office was transformed into a barber shop and Democrats were barred.

The filibuster began yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock when the Senate took up the bill providing for a State hospital for soldiers at Bristol. It was reported favorably by the finance committee with recommendation of passage.

The bill is sponsored by Senator Coggeshall, Democrat, of Bristol. When it was taken up for action Senator McMeehan, Republican, of East Providence, objected to immediate consideration.

Then the Democratic filibuster began. Senator Toupin, president of the Senate, is a Democrat. He recognized a Democratic Senator who began to speak. After this senator had grown wearied, he yielded the floor to a Democratic colleague. So it continued all through the night. When the first pink of dawn appeared in the sky, oratory was still hitting on all sixes, as far as the Democrats were concerned. Today members of both parties in the Senate declared they would not yield if the filibuster were carried on even to Dec. 31.

Senator John J. McCrane, Democrat, of Providence, was the first Senator recognized by President Toupin. The Senator gave his colleagues much valuable information on the early days and subsequent history of Rhode Island, as set down in the Encyclopaedia Brittanica.

Another Democratic Senator to whom the floor was yielded read an exhaustive report on taxes in Newport. Another Democrat brushed up on Senatorial etiquette.

All through the night the Senators stuck by their guns, relieving each other in the chamber for rest periods and sleeping in the big leather chairs of the rest room. The Senate restaurant did a steady business in sandwiches and coffee, the latter becoming blacker and blacker with each order.

At 10 o'clock today, when the available supply of literature in the Senate chamber had been exhausted, two Democratic Senators departed for the public library to bring back more volumes.

COURLEY GIRL'S SWEETHEART IS JAILED

Judge Refuses His Request to Go to Charles Street as She Weeps

Miss Margaret Courley of No. 21 Mechanic street, East Milton, who fled to Montreal with Thomas L. DeLoury, father of her baby, broke down in Municipal Court today when Judge Palmer sentenced DeLoury to one year in the House of Correction. He was charged with stealing a $15 sweater.

Tears streaked the cheeks of the pretty girl as she sat in the dock next to that confining her sole-convicted sweetheart and heard sentence passed.

Then she leaned over toward him and cried:

"For God's sake, tell them to send you to the jail."

DeLoury asked to be sent to Charles street, but Judge Palmer denied it.

Miss Courley was arraigned at the same time with DeLoury, charged with violation of her probation. The charge was in the name of Mildred Graham.

Judge Palmer discharged her with the statement that he believed her to be the victim of an infatuation for DeLoury.

instantly killed in the explosion of one of the three boilers. Cox was in the boiler room with him, opening "stop valves" on top of the boilers preparatory to the vessel's sailing.

Cox, after completing his part of the task, slipped back to the floor of the boiler room. As he left the top of the boilers, a terrific explosion occurred. He was hurled against the side of the boiler room.

Not a cry was heard from Halstrom, who was still on top of the boilers. Live steam swirled out, filling the room, and he made his way to safety with great difficulty.

Second Engineer Manson was hurled off his feet by the force of the blowup. Realizing, however, that Halstrom was still in the room, he made an attempt to locate him. The steam became too hot, forcing him into the open.

The force of the explosion shook the steamer from stem to stern and awoke those members of the crew of forty-three who were not on duty.

Captain William Harris, realizing the seriousness of the mishap to his vessel and fearing it would catch fire through scattering of the boiler fires, ordered fire apparatus to be summoned.

Boston Squad No. 1, and Engine 44, the fireboat, responded. The rescue men attempted to go into the steam-filled boiler room, both to close the steam valve and to rescue the body of Halstrom.

Halstrom, according to members of the steamer's crew, was married ten days before the Trelyon sailed from England on the trip that included Australia and Boston.

MEDICAL CASES PUT OFF IN QUINCY COURT

James J. Black and his wife, Mrs. Josephine Black of No. 18 Billing, Norfolk Downs, with Lieut. Hiram C. Phillips, of No. 163 Independent avenue, Quincy, all three charged with illegal practice of medicine, were granted a continuance when their cases were called in Quincy court today.

Judge Kenneth Nash granted continuance to March 13 when it was explained that counsel for the Blacks was detained in a Boston court on another case.

flects Nature's wisdom. The human baby is the most helpless of living creatures. Only the passionate devotion of the normal human mother, and her conviction that each baby is the most wonderful ever born, has carried the human race along thus far.

When a woman with millions leaves a double share for her infant, she is only doing what every normal mother does in another way.

A KALI SIKH, who are the fighting men of India, sent soldiers to fight British India troops. Mohandas Gandhi urges the Sikhs not to fight and not to send any fighting men abroad. Nonresistance will win, he says.

Gandhi's attitude explains why it is possible for 100,000 Englishmen in India to hold down 300,000,000 Asiatics. There is as much difference between a Hindu of Gandhi's type and a fighting Irishman for instance, as between a lop-eared rabbit and a wildcat. But that is no disgrace to rabbit or wildcat. It's only a difference.

MR. BELTON, a Deputy Police Commissioner in New York, says that city will be dry in three months. It will not be dry in three months, nor in three years. Governor Pinchot says President Coolidge ought to make the nation dry. President Coolidge could not do it, even if the law would let him use all the navy, and all the army.

THIS COUNTRY is firmly settled on a basis of bootleg whiskey, and the question is: What can be done about it?

IT WAS predicted, when Prohibition started, that hardened whiskey drinkers would get whiskey somehow, of course. But they would die off, poisoned, and then the young people would grow up free of alcohol and clear in thought. Unfortunately, the young people, millions of them, are growing up with a whiskey flask on the hip, many of them drunk night after night—and every head of a school for boys or girls knows it.

THE EFFECTS of bootleg whiskey, and of green, badly made whiskey from abroad, begin to show already in young children. Conditions are made worse by the moral principles that go with contempt for law.

DR. HOLT, who died in China the other day, knew as much about children—especially rich men's children—as any one in America.

Shortly before he died he said: "Unless something happens to make conditions better, and if the children of this period grow up as they are starting, they won't have enough institutions in the country to hold them."

NOW THAT the country has secured "the blessing of prohibition," the next problem is to fight the aggravated drunkenness that goes with Prohibition and the peculiarly poisonous brand of Prohibition whiskey.

Major Walsh intimates that Miss Marion has no pronounced liking for the facts. According to the Major, the little blonde's complaint against the colored maid is the "nerest pretense."

"A little matter of finances was the moving cause of Marion's departure from home," Major Walsh says, "and when that has been ironed out everything will be lovely again. The colored maid walked on her hand and foot, and if the girl were Mrs. Pierce's natural daughter she could not have been reared more carefully or expensively.

"It is simply the old, old story of a 'home' girl who could not resist the temptation to fly away from the nest and see exactly what the big world looks like."

MISSING BLIZZARD CHASING RUM FLEET

Enoch Arden, the Prodigal Son and yesterday's blizzard take equal rank when it comes to staging disappearing acts and then showing up.

Enoch finally wandered home after his long disappearance and found things all wrong.

The Prodigal finally showed up and enjoyed the fatted calf.

Boston's much talked of blizzard failed to show, but today was discovered snooping outside the twelve-mile limit off the coast of North Carolina.

The blizzard had the weather sharks running around in circles. It was headed right for the Hub and was due to be doing its blizzardest right now.

Peace was restored today, however, when it was located playing tag with rum runners.

PLAN MEMORIAL TO FAMOUS JESUIT

A memorial in the State House for the Reverend Gabriel Druillettes, diplomatic envoy from Quebec to the Massachusetts Bay Colony, was favored before the Legislative Committee on State House today.

Former Senator Francis X. Quigley, of Holyoke, spoke for a petition to create a special commission for the erection of a memorial for Fr. Druillettes, who was missionary to the Indians. He said that Fr. Druillettes came to Boston in 1648, probably the first Jesuit to visit this city, and was entertained by Governor Winthrop, William Endicott of Salem and John Eliot. He made an alliance with the Massachusetts Bay Colony for protection against the Iroquois Indians.

FIND NEW VACCINE FOR DIPHTHERIA

Paris, Feb. 27.—A vaccine against diphtheria, invented by Dr. Jules Renault and Dr. Pierre Paul Levy, makes epidemics of that disease practically impossible, according to the results of their experiments communicated to the Academy of Medicine. The vaccine, which is called "T Plus A" and is injected subcutaneously, is hyper-neutralized and causes little inconvenience. Three hundred children treated with it were found to be completely immunized after the injections, it is said.

WOMAN SWEARS BANKER'S WIFE WAS ONCE WAIF IN ORPHANAGE

ACCUSES MRS. HARRIS OF POSING AS NIECE OF WEALTHY SOUTHERN GAMBLER

By CORINNE RICH

New York, Feb. 27 (Universal).—Elaine Lee Harris, young wife of Beverly D. Harris, former vice-president of the National City Bank, sat in Supreme Court there and heard her whole colorful life history dug up, painted, and handed back to her with widely differing versions.

Across the table was her husband, who is suing for annulment of his marriage on the grounds that the beautiful Elaine practiced fraud in representing herself as the daughter of a fine old Southern family.

CALMLY EYES LAWYER.

She turned her calm brown eyes first on one lawyer and then on the other as in presenting their cases to the jury they called Eli Rayner, "notorious Memphis gambler" either her father or her patron. She used to address Rayner always as "Uncle Eli."

Testimony that Mrs. Harris was a former waif in a Memphis orphanage was given by Miss G. Beacham, a trained nurse.

The issue of her birth is being questioned as well as the identity of her parents and their financial circumstances, her early life; and what she was when the banker married her in 1915 after a short and tempestuous courtship.

And all the while Mrs. Harris is an interested spectator. She wore for the opening of the long deferred case a chic gray suit with a small gray hat. A clump of roses at the belt brought out the lights of her lovely brunettiness.

Mrs. Harris never changed expression when Caruthers Ewing, her husband's counsel, declared that at the time of her marriage she was the mistress of Rayner, traveling over the country with him as his niece. That she had previously run away from an orphanage in Nashville, Tennessee, had been a telephone operator in Memphis and a member of an establishment of ill repute there.

Nor did she show a sign of emotion when her own counsel, George Gordon Battle, denied these allegations, but stated that she was the daughter of the gambler and had been born out of wedlock.

"In the year Mr. Harris says I was living with Eli Rayner I was a mere child dwelling on a plantation in Mississippi and surrounded by the love and care of my relatives and under the watchful eyes of my old black mammy," said Mrs. Harris.

'VICTIM OF PLOT."

On the other hand, the plaintiff claims that far from being born of cultured people, an old Lee family of dignity and money, Elaine Lee had sprung from poor Mississippi farmer folk.

Her own lawyer declared her an illegitimate child, but the opposition maintained that she was not.

"Mrs. Harris is merely the victim of a conspiracy to get rid of her," said defence counsel. "For this purpose her husband has brought these monstrous and unfounded charges. He first wanted her to divorce him, and he agreed to a separation calling for $1,000 a month as her portion."

Harris Would Let Wife Wed Another But Calls Her 'Bad'

New York, Feb. 27.—Beverly D. Harris, banker, who is seeking to annul his marriage to Eleanor E. Lee Harris, is willing she marry somebody else. He is ready to let her divorce him so she can wed another wealthy man.

So said her counsel, Atty. George G. Battle, in court today. He added:

"He speaks of her as a bad woman, but he'd let another marry her. This is a fact that may throw light on the whole case.

"During the time they lived together, Harris treated her with the greatest brutality and cruelty, at the same time writing her letters of admiration and respect."

CHICAGO RIOT CALLS WHEN STRIKE BEGINS

Chicago, Feb. 27.—A strike of union dressmakers, called by the International Garment Workers today, started out with a half dozen riot calls and reports of several acts of violence.

According to police reports, a manufacturer was attacked and a number of non union workers were slugged. The reports said that attempts were made to wreck some of the dressmaking shops and that damage was caused.

BANKER BEVERLY D. HARRIS AND BEAUTIFUL WIFE

'DEAD' VET VERY MUCH ALIVE

Adams Deminuk Returns, and Landlady "Sister" Beneficiary Is in Jail

While the Seventeenth Machine Gun Battalion of the First Division was making history in France Adam Deminuk, a private, was reported killed in action.

His former landlady in Detroit represented herself as Deminuk's sister, and the government has since been paying her $27 per month insurance.

Deminuk, very much alive, is in Boston, uncovering a story of adventure and thrills, that reads like a movie scenario. The landlady is in jail.

Deminuk, instead of being killed, was captured by the Germans. He was taken to a German prison camp, from which he escaped by hiding in an old barrel while the Germans were staging a celebration.

The young soldier's home was in Poland. He was cut off from escape to the American lines and started for his old home. He finally arrived there, but being without American citizenship papers, was promptly drafted and placed in the Polish army, where he served until November, 1921.

The sandals the Poles gave him when he was discharged weren't much good. The money they gave him was worse.

Afoot, with bags tied about his feet, he walked across Europe. Finally he reached a seaport and shipped to this country.

When he made his way to Detroit the landlady, who had been receiving his insurance, promptly denounced his as a faker and ordered him begone. He came to Boston and Major W. W. Lemmerd, judge-advocate of the army base, South Boston, took up his case with Washington and found his story true in every detail.

Deminuk has secured a position in Lynn and the army authorities and American Legion officials are taking steps to secure adequate compensation for him from the government.

Siki "Shadow Boxes" As He Lies Ill With Pneumonia

Havana, Cuba, Feb. 27.—"Battling" Siki, French Senegalese boxer, took another turn for the worse last night, and today his physician, Dr. Benigno Sousa, told newspapermen that the boxer had broncho-pneumonia and that his condition was regarded serious. Siki, who came here a week ago to take part in boxing bouts, caught cold and in a half delirious condition the night before last escaped from his room and wandered on the streets until policemen caught him. He appeared to be much better yesterday afternoon, but last night his fever rose again and he lay flat on his back and "shadow-boxed" despite the pleas of his nurse.

LEVIATHAN HERE FOR REPAIRS

Giant Liner Sustained $250,000 Damage When She Recently Ran Aground

It became known today when the United States liner Leviathan arrived here for dry docking that damage estimated at $250,000 was done to the big ship's bottom when she grounded on Robbin's reef in lower New York harbor last December.

While the ship is in drydock more than twenty plates will be removed from her bottom and other damage caused by the crash repaired. The ship will also be overhauled in departments. She will be ready resume transatlantic service April

The reversing turbine engines which were stripped of blades during a passage last Summer, were repaired at Brooklyn Navy Yard before the ship came here.

The White Star liner Majestic, Leviathan's rival as the biggest afloat, is scheduled to go into drydock March 25. Work on the Leviathan will be rushed to meet schedule. The South Boston pier is the only one in America that can accommodate either of these ships.

The Leviathan arrived off the lightship at 8 a. m. today and then chored until 1:30 p. m., when she steamed slowly in through the Broad Sound channel in charge of Captain John Lowe, the veteran Boston pilot.

INSANE VETERAN WRECKS HOME IN SAUGUS

Harry Moore Goes Suddenly Mad, Threatens Family and Battles Police

A Canadian veteran, Harry Moore, suddenly insane from war injuries and the strain of twenty subsequent operations, today wrecked the home of Charles Rhodes at No. 85 Lincoln avenue, Saugus, and battled three husky policemen into a state of exhaustion before being placed in the Danvers Asylum.

For more than a quarter of an hour Moore raced back and forth up stairs and down, through the house in pursuit of Rhodes, his wife and their thirteen-year-old daughter, Annie.

The mad veteran, a lodger at the Rhodes home, screamed threats as he pursued them. Finally the terror-stricken family reached a room far enough ahead of him to close and lock the door.

Then, while Moore hurled heavy furniture about the rooms, shattered bric-a-brac against the walls and tore up rugs, Rhodes dropped from the room in which his family had sought safety and raced for a neighbor's home.

In response to his telephone call, Captain Stuart and Patrolman Bennett and Bannon were sent to capture the veteran.

Moore, with a maniacal scream, leaped into battle as the policemen entered the house. Captain Stuart, one of the strongest men on the force, weighs over 200 pounds, but Moore tossed him against a wall with a sweep of his arm.

Back and forth the battle raged, with the three policemen endeavoring to drive the madman into a corner.

Moore ripped the coats of the policemen, "slugged" them, kicked their legs, rushed them head on, attempted to bite them—and held his own all the way.

Finally the three policemen, almost exhausted themselves, smothered Moore's attack and made him a prisoner. Patrolman Barrett later was treated at the hospital for a blow on the head.

Moore was taken to the Lynn Hospital where physicians decided to place him in a padded cell. When the cell was reached, Moore opened up his attack again. He seized the legs of an orderly, flopped him to the floor and ripped the shoes off the orderly's feet.

Later Moore was taken to Danvers.

Moore, according to Rhodes, had been subject to epileptic attacks at intervals but had never exhibited signs of insanity before. He appeared to be fond of all three members of the family, but began his attack on them before they were aware he had gone suddenly insane.

BANKER'S WIFE FOUND LOVE IN WINE SHOWER

Secrets of Mrs. Harris' Alleged Past Revealed at Marriage Annulment Trial

New York, Feb. 27.—One of the depositions read into the record of the Beverly D. Harris marriage annulment suit was that of Mrs. Margaret Saunders of Memphis, who said that she "would remember Susie Lee" represented as Mrs. Harris, for Susie "roomed with her six years." Mrs. Saunders said:

"I saw in a newspaper, I guess two years ago, that her husband was suing her for a divorce or something. There was a picture of her and I thought it was the same girl."

Again, after fixing the date as about eleven years previous, Mrs. Saunders said of this same Susie Lee:

"She was in town and sent for me to come to her room at the Gayoso hotel. After a while Eli Rayner came up. I ate supper there with them. She said she didn't want Mr. Newman (a Presbyterian minister) to know how she was living there with Eli Rayner. She said he was a gambler and spent plenty of money.

"I asked where she met him and she said in a house; that she threw some wine on him. She said they had been to Europe."

Mrs. Saunders told him she, too, had been in the orphanage with Susie Lee, and how later the girl had "been with a policeman's family in Nashville and went by the name of Susie Lee Ganga." The deposition went on:

"She said if you are going to get money, not to get a little but to get a lot of it. She said Rayner was buying her clothes and that he was a gambler and carrying her around and was jealous."

The deposition of S. R. Lee, son of James Lee, Jr., and grandson of James Lee, founder of the steamship line, said there had been no brother of his grandfather and no Slocker Lee, so far as he knew, and that he had never before heard of the present Mrs. Harris.

DIVORCES WIFE WHO TWICE QUIT HIM

Hill, First National Bank Employe, Took Care of Children She Deserted

Ralph E. Hill, an employe of the First National Bank of Boston, was granted a divorce today by Judge Dolan in probate court from Eleanor T. Goldthwait Hill, daughter of Arthur P. Goldthwait of No. 40 Belfort road, Milton, also connected with the First National.

Hill charged desertion. He testified his wife left home one night after an argument, taking their two children, Arthur G. and Marion E. Hill.

He persuaded her to return, but she remained only a few weeks. He returned from the bank one night to find her gone. She had left the children this time. Later she telephoned and told him she was not coming back.

Hill remained in their home in Mattapan for a year with his mother, Mrs. Bessie Hill of East Braintree, keeping house and caring for the children.

Then he made an arrangement with his father-in-law to keep the children. Hill paying $10 a week for their board. The children are still in Milton, while their father is living in the Back Bay.

WHEN Miss Francesca Braggiotti was in Florence last Summer, the well-known Italian artist, Emilio Manzoni-Zarini, made a pastel sketch of her.

This sketch has been loaned by Miss Braggiotti for the exhibition and sale of Signore Manzoni-Zarini's works now being held at Goodspeed's, No. 9A Ashburton place.

The Florentine artist has devoted himself especially to etchings and dry-points and his first foreign exhibition along these lines held in Rome two years ago resulted in a large purchase by the Musee Royale.

A number of works done by the artist are in the collection of the King and Queen of Italy. Benjamin Kimball of Chestnut street has perhaps the largest Manzoni-Zarini collection in this country.

The exhibition at Goodspeed's, which opened on Monday, will continue a fortnight.

APROPOS of Miss Francesca Braggiotti, or "Cesca," as she is known to her friends, everyone is delighted to know that this charming talented girl will be able to discard her crutches in the near future.

Despite her inability to get about without the use of these implements, "Cesca" Braggiotti has carried on valiantly, and every day finds her with her sister, Berthe, instructing others in the gentle art of terpsichore at their Denishawn School.

Miss Berthe Braggiotti is, I believe, to coach some of the dancing for "Wake Up," the Vincent Club show coming in April.

MISS EMILY SEARS expects to be able to leave Phillips House this week, where she has been recovering from an attack of appendicitis.

Miss Sears, who is the elder daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Henry F. Sears, of Beacon street, was one of the prettiest debutantes of the season. She is a tall, slender blonde.

TICKETS for "Oh Boy," which society folk are staging at the Tremont Theatre next Monday and Tuesday, are going like hot-cakes. Which is great good news for the Massachusetts Association for Occupational Therapy and the Disabled Ex-Service Men's Exchange, for whose benefit the performances are being given.

HUGHES LAUDS HUMANNESS OF HARDING

Partisan Strife Is Laid Aside Temporarily at Capitol During the Memorial Service

Washington, Feb. 27.—"He wore himself out in the endeavor to be friendly. He gave his life to his country. No man can do more than that."

This final tribute to Warren G. Harding, the man and the President, was spoken today by Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes, who delivered the only address at the official memorial services for the late President in the hall of the House of Representatives.

While the sounds of partisan strife that have reverberated through Washington in past weeks were stilled a distinguished audience gathered to pay testimony to the esteem in which the late President was held and to note their sorrow at his passing.

Present were President Coolidge, members of the Cabinet and the Supreme Court; the diplomatic colony of Washington, resplendent in court uniforms; members of Congress and a saddened group of relatives and intimate friends of Mr. Harding. His widow sat in this group in the somber black of bereavement.

Secretary Hughes reviewed at length the accomplishments of the late President's administration of the Republic, but it was upon the humanness and kindliness of the late President that he laid the greatest stress.

"It is fitting," he said, "that we should render the official tribute of respect, but the significance of this occasion is far deeper than that.

"It is the tribute inspired by love of country, as laying aside the difference and controversies which seem but trivial in the face of man's adventures and God's province, we stand united by the indissoluble bonds of a common patriotism, knowing well that ungrateful Republics cannot endure.

"The temples of democracy will be but vain vestiges of a vanished faith if their altar fires are not kept burning by the memory of those who have met the supreme test and laid down their lives in heroic fidelity and self-sacrifice.

"Above all, we give the tribute of deep affection which moves us to speak in tender remembrance of a generous and kindly spirit who counted human fellowship more precious than all the pomp and circumstance of power."

"He belonged to the aristocracy of the plain people of this country.

"He exhausted himself in service, a martyr in fidelity to the interests of the people for whom he labored with a passionate devotion. He was a man of the people, indulging no consciousness of superiority, incapable of arrogance, separated from them neither by experience nor pride nor by eccentricity.

"Nothing human was alien to him and he had the divine gift of sympathy. He wrought mightily for the prosperity of the nation and the peace of the world, but he clothed the exercise of power with a beautiful garment of gentleness."

TEN-CENT FEE AT CARNEY HOSPITAL

NO CHARGE IF PATIENT TOO POOR

Experts Give Services Free; Sisters Care for All Classes and Creeds

This is the fourth of a series of articles which is a sequel to this newspaper's investigation of medical quackery in Greater Boston.

If you are not acquainted with reputable physicians and wish to make sure of obtaining expert advice and fair dealing, the series will show you how to avoid quacks by patronizing Boston's health centres, the best in the country.

The Carney Hospital, in Old Harbor street, South Boston, for over sixty-five years, has been devoted to the needs of the poor.

Founded in 1857 by Andrew Carney with a $75,000 donation and conducted by the Sisters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul, it has always received with open arms patients of all classes and creeds irrespective of their financial condition.

This hospital during the past year has treated 39,494 patients in its out-patient department, an average of 110 a day; and has given out medicine on 16,625 prescriptions absolutely free of charge.

CLINICS DAILY.

About fifty doctors and seventy-five nurses comprise the staff. This includes the Sisters of Charity stationed there, who are all graduate nurses.

Medical and surgical clinics are held all day from 8:00 to 9:30, except on holidays and Sundays, when the out-patient department is closed.

The Out-Patient Department is open for general diseases from 9:00 to 10:30 a. m. Specific diseases are treated for the remainder of the day.

No charge is made for Baby Clinics.

X-RAYS AT COST.

A charge of 10 cents is made for all other clinics and treatments.

X-Ray plates made at cost.

A charge of $17.50 a week is made for bed patients.

Medicine is sold at cost.

In all cases, no charge at all is made if the patient is unable to pay.

Some of the clinics are: Medical, Dental, skin, eye, ear, nose, throat, gynaecological (women's special diseases), rectal, nerve, orthopedic, surgical, pre-natal, baby hygiene, baking and massage.

SOCIAL SERVICE.

A Social Service Department is also run in connection with the hospital. The nursing Sisters and visiting nurses go into the homes of the sick to administer treatment and to instruct other members of the family in the prevention and care of disease. They also follow up all hospital cases under the direction of the staff physicians.

Boston's best specialists and general practitioner give services to this worthy institution without compensation, otherwise the hospital would be laboring under a tremendous debt, as it is maintained exclusively by the fees of pay patients and occasional donations.

The Sisters-in-Charge states that a short time ago when the hospital was crowded to capacity, only seventeen patients in the hospital were paying for their board and treatment, and she hoped that some generous Bostonians would remember the hospital in their wills.

TREATED FREE BY EXPERTS

This youngster is getting weighed at the nutrition clinic at Carney Hospital. No charge is made for any of the baby clinics at this hospital and the fee for all other clinics and treatmens is ten cents.

ENGLISH FIRM THREATENS A BIG LOCKOUT

Spinners' Federation Proposes Drastic Step to Force an End to Small Strike

Manchester, Eng., Feb. 27.—A lockout of 150,000 cotton operatives is threatened almost immediately, eventually affecting, if it materializes, 500,000 workers. The decision to take the step was reached by the Master Cotton Spinners' Federation, to enforce the coiling off of a strike now in progress in a comparatively small mill at Royton.

A few weeks ago an extra machine for breaking up raw cotton was introduced into the mill. Two women operators claimed this imposed increased work upon them and demanded increased wages. Failure to arrange a settlement of their claim led to the strike.

The employers decided to give the operators one week more in which to resume work, failing which they say they will close all the mills governed by the Federation, and keep them idle until the workers agree to return.

50,000 Idle in Norway

Because of Unrest

Christiania, Norway, Feb. 27.—About 50,000 workers are idle in Norway because of unrest in the labor world, with the prospect that 24,000 will be added unless there is an unexpected settlement meanwhile.

The trouble was kept down until January 17, when a strike of dock workers tied up virtually every port in the country, wages being the point at dispute.

The National Employers' Association proclaimed it would on February 21 lock out 50,000 men employed in the building, textile, tobacco, shoe and other trades, and also threatened the lockout of a further 24,000 unless there was a quick settlement.

The trade unions responded by calling a strike of the paper cellulose workers, thereby throwing 12,000 men into idleness.

GROCER FOILS ROBBERY IN CAMBRIDGE

Ex-Boston Policeman, Now Store Clerk, Unharmed by Bullets

Armed with an unloaded revolver, William J. Ford, former Boston policeman, and now manager of the O'Keefe Grocery Company store at No. 691 Main street, Cambridge, foiled two youthful gunmen who attempted to rob him in his store.

Ford chased the bandits from the store and for a quarter of a mile through the streets of Cambridge until he deemed it wise to abandon the pursuit when he was made the target for two shots fired by the older of the two youths.

Ford was in a back room of the store when the youths, one about nineteen years old, and the other about sixteen, entered and the older whipped out a revolver and ordered him to hand over the store cash.

Before the bandits realized what he was doing, Ford ducked behind a counter where he was standing and reappeared with a revolver in his hand. This was the signal for a hasty retreat on the part of the youths.

Ford followed them from the store shouting to them to halt. He chased them down State street for about a quarter of a mile until the older of the two fugitives turned and fired two shots at him. The bullets missed their mark.

Ford retraced his steps and informed the police of the affair. Patrolman Halliday of Central Square station was sent to the scene but failed to find any trace of the bandits.

KLAN MEETING BROKEN UP BY MOB OF 3000

Wisconsin Citizens Wreck a Hall in Riot; Police Rescue Klux Speakers

Waukesha, Wis., Feb. 27.—Three thousand persons stormed the Commercial Hotel, in the heart of the downtown district, put out the lights, smashed windows, broke doors and disbanded an attempted Ku Klux Klan organization meeting before which speakers of national prominence were scheduled to appear.

The Klansmen escaped to the second floor of the hotel, from which they later were rescued by police and firemen called from Milwaukee.

Captain Harry Welch, past commander of the Waukesha post of the American legion, addressed the attackers from the shoulders of several men.

The meeting was the result of about two weeks' effort to organize a Klan unit here. When the Klan speaker arose and announced that a prayer would open the meeting he was greeted with catcalls, jeers and howls and a man jumped on a table and waved a pistol. A dozen men rushed through a broken door of the hotel and with drawn revolvers announced: "The meeting is off."

The lights went out, the wires having been cut, and the three-story hotel was thrown into darkness. A concerted rush was made toward the Klan speakers and organizers.

Sympathizers shielded them and in the jumble succeeded in getting them out through a side door.

DOES PEARL WHITE MAKE FILM FACES? PERISH THE THOUGHT!

DIRECTOR ALSO SAYS SHE OBEYS

Suit Against Her, Raises a Question t Horse's Displacement

York, Feb. 27.—Found! motion picture star who ders from her director. is she?

White, heroine of innu- thrillers.

Webb, motion picture the first witness called t in the Supreme Court in ty to testify in a $50,000 dam brought against Pearl White Fox Film Corporation as bant defendants by John F. Beatty of Brooklyn, furnished some interesting details lights and intimate revelations on the film game.

When Henry P. Cochrane, counsel for Beatty, asked Mr. Webb if Miss White obeyed his orders during the filming of "Without Fear," the director informed the attorney that she did so implicitly.

The question of the width of the road over which the film was shot was introduced by Mr. Cochrane. He attempted to determine the measurements of the stretch chosen for the daring ride by cross-examining the director.

"How wide was the roadway, Mr. Webb?"

"About nine feet, I should say sir."

"How wide is a horse in action Mr. Webb?"

"About two feet, I take it."

"How long is a horse?" contin- ued the cross-examiner.

"I have never had occasion to measure one," replied the man who knows his motion pictures, but who doesn't run a stable.

"How far into the roadway did Miss White come to make her facial grimaces or contortions before the camera during the filming of the picture?"

Mr. Webb, in the name of fair art, informed Mr. Cochrane that Miss White did not make grimaces, and that contortions couldn't adequately express the pantomime of the fearless Pearl.

According to Beatty's claim, Pearl White, the star of the Fox production, "Without Fear," backed her horse into the roadway at the wrong time at Bayside, L. I., where the production was being made, with the result that Beatty tumbled from his mount, injured himself severely and spent several months in a hospital. He now asks that he be awarded damages to the extent of $50,000 from Fox Films and Pearl White.

Murray Jenkins then asked that the case be dismissed on the ground that Beatty's claim came under the workman's compensation act.

Judge Hagarty refused to grant a dismissal.

Remarkable Discovery Banishes Gray Hair

A Proved Substitute for the Lost Pigmentation

Original Color Quickly Appears

Science again has scored a triumph in the discovery of a very remarkable liquid known as Kolor-Bak. If you are gray, just apply this liquid to the hair or scalp and your hair will soon take on the actual color it had in the past. Not a trace of grayness will remain.

Kolor-Bak comes in the form of a clean and colorless liquid, containing properties which quickly restore the lost color to the hair and give it renewed vigor. And note that the one preparation is for all colors of hair. No special solution required for each color—no samples of hair required.

You will find also that after using Kolor-Bak the hair has the same shade throughout. It does not appear streaked, faded or "dyed."

Every scientist, every physician, knows that gray hair is hair that has ceased to receive its normal supply of coloring matter or pigments from certain tiny cells (called follicles or papillae) in the scalp, because these cells have become inactive from illness, shock of some kind, scalp disease, dandruff, infection, neglect of the hair, or lack of circulation, etc. But no matter what the cause of the grayness, it is simply amazing to see how it disappears when Kolor-Bak is used. Kolor-Bak is a real substitute for the natural pigmentation.

Kolor-Bak has been proved by hundreds of thousands of people, once gray, now with hair in the original color. Get a bottle today.

For Dandruff, Itching Scalp and Falling Hair
Kolor-Bak also banishes dandruff, and prevents itching of the scalp and falling hair. Thoroughly cleanses scalp and hair.

GIRL ADMITS KILLING JAIL MATRON

Escaped Prisoner Caught as She Keeps Appointment to Meet Man

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 27.—Miss Gladys Ellis, alias Rodgers, twenty-three years old, confessed that she killed Miss Louise Richards, aged seventy, teacher and matron at the Indiana woman's prison here, as a preliminary to her escape from the institution.

Miss Ellis, who is said to have a long criminal record, was captured by a squad of detectives as she alighted from a taxicab in the downtown section, where she had an appointment with a man friend.

Miss Ellis became hysterical when arrested and officials were several hours obtaining a coherent statement from her regarding the death of the matron.

The young woman in her statement to the police, said she had planned her escape from the prison where she was serving a long sentence for forgery and that after she said she had succeeded in picking the lock in the cell door she entered where she was confined, and in the same manner had obtained access to the matron's room.

She told the police she struck the matron across the head with a bunch of the latter's keys when Miss Richards attempted to prevent her from escaping. She had concealed herself in the matron's room until the latter fell asleep. When she attempted to take the keys from beneath the keeper's pillow, the latter awoke and grappled with her.

The girl said she felled the matron, bound and gagged her and made her escape. She did not know the matron had been fatally injured until reading the papers, she declared.

After leaving the prison, she made her way downtown and purchased a new outfit of clothing with money she had taken from the slain woman to replace the prison garb.

McConnaughey of Dayton, Dartmouth student, who fractured his spine by a fall into a ravine on Mount Washington and was brought to a hospital here, was reported in a favorable condition today. Physicians said he passed a comfortable night and probably would recover.

MOTHER DIES AS SON'S BODY IS FOUND

Recovery of Remains in River Bares Double Tragedy in Watertown

Thomas W. Hevers, twenty-six years old, of No. 27 Churchill street, Watertown, kissed his mother good-bye and set out in search of work.

For weeks not a word did the Hevers family hear of him. The mother of the missing young man, giving way beneath the strain of worry over the fate of her son breathed her last.

Today Thomas Hevers is back in Watertown. But he is spared the news of his mother's demise. For he, too, lies dead in an undertaking establishment in Watertown.

The young man's body was found in the Charles River at a point known as "The Willows," about 100 yards east of the Galen street bridge, Watertown.

Patrolman W. G. Kinury of the Metropolitan district police saw the body floating amid broken cakes of ice on the river. With Sergeant Dominic O'Connor he recovered the body from the river with the aid of a pole and a ladder laid across the ice.

The body was removed to Gregg's undertaking rooms in Watertown where it was viewed by Medical Examiner West. The latter declared death due to accidental drowning.

Couldn't "Dodge" this cough ---but Rem relieves it

What could Mr. Baker do about it? He's a core-maker at the Dodge Motor Co. in Detroit — and lives at 10211 Cameron avenue.

His work gets him hot and sweaty—and when he'd go out in the open he'd often catch a cold.

He caught a "bird of a cough" last winter which made him lose a lot of time. But REM got him back on the job quickly. Here's how Mr. Baker puts it:

"I have coughs and colds very often as my work gets me hot and sweaty and on going out into the open I catch a cold."

"Last winter I had a cold that was a bird and no mistake. It hung on to me for two weeks. I had a heavy deep-seated cough with it. I felt so rotten I had to stay off from work for two or three days when it was at its worst. My throat was dry, it was hard to raise the phlegm and I coughed so much that several nights I hardly got a wink of sleep."

"I guess it was because I'd seen Rem recommended so much in the papers by people who used it that I decided to try some. So one day I dropped by the Belmont Pharmacy, on Belmont Ave., and got a bottle. The relief I got from a few doses was fine, it seemed to loosen the phlegm right away. In a couple of days the cough and cold were all gone. I won't go so long next time without taking Rem. My brother had a cough too and it fixed him up in short order. I could tell how good Rem was the very first dose."

REM contains a special ingredient which this year alone is costing over $20,000.

This $20,000 could have been saved, but instead, it is put into REM to make it more effective.

REM doesn't taste a bit bad. Nor does it contain Opiates.

Your druggist will gladly supply you with REM, and any time you'd rather have your money back, you're welcome to it.

NO TENABLE REASON BONUS CAN'T BE PAID AT ONCE, SAYS QUINN

CLAIMS IT WORKS NO HARDSHIP ON ANYONE

This is the third of a series of articles prepared for the Boston American by the national commander of the American Legion, giving the truth about adjusted compensation as the World War veterans see it. In a previous article Commander Quinn told of a billion-dollar error made by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, which helped defeat the bonus bill in the last Congress.

By JOHN R. QUINN,
National Commander American Legion.
Written for Cosmopolitan News Service.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 27.—When it was seen that some new excuse was needed to prevent the veteran from collecting the obligation owed him, a new objection was not long in coming.

The Secretary of the Treasury announced there could not be tax reduction if a "bonus" were paid.

The statement was wrong, misrepresentative and not founded on fact. The fallacy of coupling these two unrelated issues, the Legion proceeded to point out in this fashion.

Treasury actuaries had prepared for the Senate Finance Committee an estimated cost of adjusted compensation which totalled $1,000,000 a year for the first three years. The Treasury Department's figures, not ours remember.

The surplus was $370,000,000 as announced by Mr. Mellon.

So the Legion subtracted $81,000,000 from $370,000,000 and found that taxes could be reduced some $289,000,000 and still pay the obligation owing to service men.

After due consideration, the Treasury Department failed to answer this argument, but did some more figure-guessing.

A new set of cost estimates of adjusted compensation were gotten out, trebling the previous cost. Yet the bill was exactly the same, even to a comma.

John R. Quinn

The only thing this new act of variable statistics did was to leave less room for tax reduction if the adjusted compensation measure was passed. But even with this new guess at reduction to the extent of nearly one hundred million dollars was possible.

The American Legion did more than answer every argument against the measure advanced by the opposition. Though the Legion has never discussed how the money should be raised, believing that a debt should be paid regardless, it asked Mr. Mellon some questions.

This government was and is receiving approximately $160,000,000 a year from England as interest on her debt, and will continue to receive this amount for sixty years.

SUMS IN ADDITION.

Why not use a part of this amount each year to pay adjusted compensation?

President Coolidge in his first message spoke of economies to be effected in governmental administration probably amounting to $220,000,000 to $250,000,000.

Here was enough money to pay adjusted compensation for three years. But the Secretary of the Treasury failed to take this into consideration when estimating anticipated revenue upon which plans for tax reduction are based.

Then the Legion did a simple sum in addition. It took the $370,000,000 surplus for the year ending 1923, added it to the $313,000,000 estimated surplus for the year ending June 30, 1924, plus saving in 1925 when both adjusted compensation and tax reduction would become effective.

It was found that by that time nearly a billion dollars would be available in the Treasury for compensation payments. Why not, the Legion asked, use some of this huge sums to pay a just and recognized debt?

These figures are not the Legion's, not propaganda. A. Platt Andrew, Congressional Representative from Massachusetts, prepared them for Treasury Department statistics.

And in speaking of the Treasury Department's variable estimates of cost of adjusted compensation, "The World's Work," a magazine opposed to "the bonus," declared the Treasury Department was either a bad guesser or had deliberately misled the public. The Legion leaves it to the public to decide.

NO TENABLE REASON.

The American Legion has time and again proved that adjusted compensation can be paid without working hardships on anyone. I further add that opponents of adjusted compensation cannot adduce any tenable reason why it should not be paid—and at once.

It would be but returning to the soldier the money taken from him by the government during the war. Tomorrow I shall explain how the government took nearly two billions of dollars from the fighting men who served during the time of great emergency.

HUSBAND VAMPED BY RIVAL, SAYS WIFE

MRS. BETTY FRIEL

Mrs. Betty Friel of No. 330 Longwood avenue, Brookline, artist's model and amateur actress, has left for Chicago to file suit for divorce against her husband, Charles Friel of No. 4631 Drexel Boulevard, Chicago, naming a Dorchester society girl as correspondent.

The wife's charges against her husband and the girl will be of a sensational nature, she promised. She will seek the custody of the two Friel children.

Mrs. Friel refused to reveal the identity of the girl whom she accuses of breaking up her home.

Friel's interest in the Dorchester girl is of several years' standing, according to the wife. Two years ago, Mrs Friel declared, she went to the home of the "other woman" and pleaded with her that she give up her husband.

The girl agreed to sever her relations with Friel, the wife said, but failed to make good her promise. A few weeks later Friel and the girl were seen together, the wife said, and last May the girl went to Chicago to visit him.

The information that the girl stopped at the same apartment house with Friel was the last straw, the wife said. It was then that she resolved to free herself from her husband.

"The girl has done everything to steal my husband's love. In fact, he was so greatly interested in this Dorchester vamp that he forgot all about me and my two children, and I was forced to go to work to support them," she said.

German Steamship Installs Brewery for Passengers

New York, Feb. 27.—The Germans have found a way to beat the prohibition law. A complete brewing plant has been installed in the North German Lloyd liner Stuttgart, which recently completed her maiden voyage from Bremen.

The vessel carries German beer on her westward trips, but as new stocks cannot be taken in here the beer is brewed in the ship for the passengers and crew during the return journey.

FARMERS NEED TO ORGANIZE, SAYS CAPPER

Senator Declares Their Failure Due to Tradition of Individuality

Springfield, Feb. 28.—The reasons so many of the 24,000,444 farmers in the country are going out of business, is because they cling to the American tradition of individuality and refuse to organize, Senator Capper of Kansas told the Eastern States Farmers' Co-operative Exchange.

"When the farmer sells," he said, "he sells to a market organized to take speculative profits.

"Because he lacks organization; because he lacks determining votes in the sale value of his commodity, the farmer gets but $7,500,000,000 for products for which the consumer pays $22,500,000,000. For speculators, middlemen and transportation to collect a toll of $15,000,000,000 on that for which the farmer gets but $7,500,000,000 is a tragic absurdity."

100 MEMBERS QUIT CHURCH IN PASTOR ROW

Manchester, N. H., Baptists Object to His Outside Activities

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 28.—Because of their opposition to the pastor, a hundred members of the People's Baptist Tabernacle have declared their intention to transfer to the Merrimack Street Baptist Church.

A week ago seven members called a special meeting of the congregation and presented a resolution asking for the resignation of the pastor, Rev. Herbert R. Whitelock. After a heated debate supporters of the pastor voted the resolution down.

Rev. Whitelock says the opposition to him is due to his outside activities. In addition to his preaching he is a leader in civic improvement movements and often applies his sermons to local improvement questions.

Motor Chats by C. F. Donnocker

The approach of the Boston Automobile Show has turned the thoughts of the motor buying public to the coming exhibition of the latest creations of the American and foreign automotive engineers.

The Boston show has always been noted as one of the greatest selling shows in the country and with the trend of automobile prices upward it is predicted by those in a position to know that this year will see greater buying at the show than ever.

The management of the show has not yet given out the decorative scheme, but it is safe to say that it will surpass anything that has been seen here before. Each year the Mechanics Building, which has been the scene of so many exhibitions, assumes an absolutely new aspect when the Auto Show transforms it into a palace of scintillating lights and festooned aisles lined by beautiful cars.

WOMAN, 100, NATIVE OF BOSTON, DEAD

Orange, N. J., Feb. 27.—Miss Laura H. Bradshow, 100 years of age, who until recently walked two miles daily for her health and who boasted of never having been ill, is dead. A fall on the icy pavements which resulted in a fractured hip on her last hike three weeks ago, and a shock which she subsequently suffered were the causes. Miss Bradshaw was born in Boston and came to Orange in 1854. She was an intimate friend of Ralph Waldo Emerson, often being entertained at his home.

The scholastic tracks fans are going to see some records shattered at Saturday's meet in Mechanics Building, when the cream of New England schoolboys compete for honors.

PETE LATZO TAKES DECISION AWAY FROM BILLY WELLS

BRITON IS SLOW AT START

"Pete" Latzo of Scranton, Pa., was awarded the decision over "Bermondsey" Billy Wells of England at the end of ten fast rounds in the main bout of the Faneuil A. C. show in Mechanics Building.

Louis Ziggarra.

Wells paid the price for case of over developed ego and lack of condition. He is without doubt, the most skillful of the English pugilists who have come here recently, and without detracting any from Latzo's victory, in good condition undoubtedly would have won.

Latzo forced the fight from the very start and succeeded in landing the cleanest punches. What he lacked in boxing skill he more than made up in determined fighting, never letting up on the Britisher, and well deserved the decision. The Scranton youth was up on top of his man all the time and his crouch protected his jaw against Wells' right hand.

NEITHER WAS IN DANGER AT ANY STAGE.

Neither was in danger at any time; in fact both came through without a mark. It was one of the best boxing exhibitions seen in a Boston ring in some time. Wells, although not a fast man, blocked exceptionally well and skillfully slipped and ducked to the King's taste.

At the opening bell Latzo led off with a left to the head and the Britisher counted with a right to the body. Both landed lefts and rights to the body as they came to a clinch. Just before the bell Latzo again scored with a couple of punches to the head. Latzo's round.

Wells opened the fracas in the second frame with a straight left to the jaw, and the lad from Scranton came back with hard body punches. Wells ducked and blocked very skillfully, but Latzo managed to score when he forced the Englishman to the ropes. Latzo's round.

WELLS DROVE LATZO INTO HIS OWN CORNER.

Early in the third round Wells drove Latzo into his own corner and set him upon the ropes with stiff rights and lefts to body and head. Latzo went back with a solid right to the jaw. The Britisher had the best of the in-fighting. Wells' round.

In the fourth frame Latzo connected with left and right to Wells' jaw without a return and drove the English boxer to the ropes with a barrage of lefts and right to the ropes. The round went to Latzo.

At the half way mark Wells appeared much fresher and scored lefts and rights to head. Latzo retaliated with both mitts to the body. Wells then drove the Scranton battler to the ropes with hard body socks. The Englisman's round.

LATZO SCORED WITH A RIGHT SOCK TO JAW.

In the sixth Latzo scored with a right sock to jaw and a couple of hard lefts to body. Wells blocked many punches and landed stiff rights to stomach. Latzo had the edge.

Wells opened the seventh with a right to Latzo's head and a volley of lefts and rights to the breadbasket. Wells won the round.

Opening up the eighth Latzo caught the English lad with a stiff right and whirled all around the Britisher punching away with both mitts. Wells spurred on came back with a volley of body punches and then landed lefts and rights to the connoueror's head. The round was even.

In the ninth session Wells got the better of the exchanges and his skilful blocking and ducking caused Latzo to miss widely. Wells' round.

TENTH WAS TAMEST AND BOTH FOUGHT HARD.

The tenth was a very torrid session with both battlers fighting fast and furiously. Wells did better with left jab to head and right hand body punches, while Latzo connected with both lefts and rights to head and body. Latzo had the edge of this round and was declared winner.

In the semi-final Battling Downey of Roxbury and Al Sears of East Boston fought eight hard rounds. Sears was awarded the decision.

SHARKEY KNOCKS OUT LUCAS IN TWO ROUNDS.

The second bout on the card was between Jack Sharkey, the fighting sailor, and Tom Lucas of Fort Strong.

Sharkey rang the sea going bells for the soldier lad in the second stanza when he connected with starboard sock to the jaw.

Frankie O'Leary and Louis Ziggarra opened the show which was scheduled for eight rounds. Ziggarra made the sailing tough, as one of O'Leary's handlers tossed in the towel in the seventh frame.

KOTSONAROS LAUGHS AS HE PLANS MAT BOUT

TARAMASCHI HAS SURELY GOT A HOLD

TARAMASCHI TO CARRY BOUT TO KOTSY

Followers of the Italian in Lynn, Lowell, Lawrence and even as far away as Fitchburg have entered tickets.

The Italian will rely on his favorite arm scissors to wear down the Greek and then try to put over his famous flying mare.

In speaking of the match last night, Angelo said: "I shall carry the battle right to the Greek. No one will accuse me of stalling. I know Kotsonaros is a tough wrestler, but I shall beat him. I shall force the issue from the start and with my advantage in strength I shall be able to wear him down and then clasp on the winning lock."

Kotsonaros looks fit and ready for the battle of his life. He weighs in to 197 pounds and thinks he has a chance with any man living. Kotzy when speaking of the match had the following to say: "I am ready to meet any wrestler in the world bar none. I outwrestled Lewis in our last match. With the headlock barred, I can beat him.

I expect to beat Taramaschi. I will set a pace so fast that it will make him dizzy. Say for me that I shall win and win tonight fall at that. When I weighed only 178 pounds I wrestled George Calza to a standstill. Now that I weight twenty pounds more there isn't an Italian wrestler living who has a chance with me."

Stanley Stasiak will appear on the card against Kotsonaros, the new Greek heavyweight. He is rounding into wonderful shape.

George Farmer Bailey is in town and still on the war path. He will meet Jack Albright in a one-fall contest.

Stasiak Posts $1000 For Return Go With Zbyszko

Stanley Stasiak The Lion of Poland has posted $1000 to meet Wladek Zbyszko in a return match to a positive finish. Speaking of the match Stasiak said, "Good judges of wrestling say I had a slight edge up to the time he threw me out of the ring. Had I stayed out there I would have won on a foul but the spectators want to see falls and I did my best. I am not kicking but want and believe I am entitled to another chance My money is up. Come on Mr. Zbyszko."

BRAVES GET TO CAMP AT ST. PETERSBURG

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 27.—On time the Pinellas special chugged its way into town, and our valiant Braves, with Vice-President Fuchs and Manager Bancroft in charge, now hold the fort.

Rube Marquard

The squad of 24, outside of the judge, the manager and the coaches, consists of batery candidates. The reception accorded the new arrivals was as hearty as though an army of world's champions had reached town.

Among the cheer leaders were: Larry Benton, who blew in from Cincinnati, and Red Lucas of Nashville, a pitcher, who came to Boston as the result of the trade last Fall between the Braves and the Cincinnati.

The party included Mrs. Bancroft, Secretary Riley, Coaches Rudolph and Farrell, Catchers Phillips and Cousinea, Trainer Neary and Pitchers Genewich, Cooney, McNamara, Stryker, Batchelder, Kamp Jeargin and Lazzeing.

Tom Pallas, the veteran ground keeper; Mickey O'Neil, Rube Marquard and Royal Rooter Pete McKenna formed the reception committee and although a big demonstration had been planned the men were too tired after the long train ride to participate in the festivities arranged.

Manager Bancroft is exceedingly anxious to start his men at work but it is doubtful if the squad can start to get into trim tomorrow.

For a deluge flooded the Waterfront Park and made a mire of the outfield that Tom Pallas had levelled and rolled into such splendid condition, a prize fight held at the park put the ground back of the home plate in bad shape.

BOSTON "Y" EXPECTS TO WIN MAT TITLE

The Boston Y. M. C. A. hopes to win the Two-State wrestling championship Saturday evening at Cambridge.

Captain Bean is confident that Boston will bring home six and possibly seven of the twelve medals. With McGuirk and Perrin at the 123-pound class, a first and possibly a second are expected.

Captain Bean is considered a sure winner in the 134-pound class, and Wendell Morris is believed to be good enough to capture the medal in the 145-pound class.

DARTMOUTH FRESHIES WILL PLAY GODDARD

Hanover, N. H., Feb. 27.—The Dartmouth freshman quintet enters the home stretch for the season tonight when it faces Goddard Seminary.

Andover, which is scheduled for Saturday, will be the climax of the season for Coach Zahn's first year men.

Andover Sends Sixteen

Andover will send sixteen entries to the B. A. A. school meet Saturday. The entries are:

40-Yard Dash—Thomson, Glendenning, Booth.

PITCHERS JOIN RED SOX AT SANTONE

By FRED C. LANE.

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 27.—Two regulars of last year's pitching staff have joined the Red Sox. Howard Ehmke and George Murray are here. Both come to the camp in the pink of condition. Murray looks fine. His spent the Winter in company with Norman McMillan hunting in and about the Carolinas. Last season when Murray reported at camp he weighed 195 pounds. He is down to mid-season form.

Howard Ehmke

Ehmke has been laid up with a severe cold that has stuck for a month or more, which caused him to report a couple of pounds under weight. The Los Angeles orange grower is of the opinion that with a couple of weeks of San Antonio he will be in condition for the opening gun.

The sun did finally master the low hanging clouds that had settled in this section for the past three days, but showed up too late to make any impression on the playing field.

It was in such poor shape that Manager Fohl decided to call off practice for another day. Four of the players ventured forth and tossed the ball about to loosen the kinks from their arms.

Lester Howe, pitcher of last year; Jiggs Donaghue, outfielder; Ralph Schillings, infielder, and Lefty Fullerton, pitcher, worked out for an hour or so.

Howe is anxious to get off to a flying start and is leaving no stone unturned in his preparation. Donaghue is bent on making the squad this season and is working like a beaver whenever the opportunity presents itself.

The sun went down like a red ball in the sky, which according to the prophets in this country, is a sign of a warm sunny day today.

Manager Fohl, Lefty Leifield, Bob Coleman and Ed Cunningham went out on the local golf links for a foresome.

The rest of the squad visited Brackenridge Park, one of the beauty spots of the southwest and were amazed with the beauty of the country.

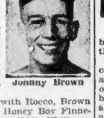
Manager Fohl is sparing no expense in arranging for his practice games. Eight negro workmen were put to work today hailing out a few of the low spots on the ball lot. The diamond was well covered during the snowstorm.

Between Rounds

Jackie Clark, the clever Allentown, Pa., middleweight, and his manager, Solly Snyder, will leave for Hazleton, Pa., tonight. Clark is booked to clash with Louis Bogash of Bridgeport, Conn., in the feature 10-round bout on Friday night.

Snyder will stop off at New York, where he has an appointment with Frank Mantell to sign articles for Clark with Paul Berlenbach at Madison Square Garden next month. Snyder also has received two flatter offers, who upset the dope by winning a decision over Young Stribling two nights ago, in Buffalo in a few weeks.

Newport Johnny Brown, the Cambridge featherweight, has been matched to beat Johnny Rocco, the New Rochelle, N. Y., lightweight They will meet in a twelve-round bout at the Nonwalk Sporting Club of Norwalk, Conn.



Johnny Brown

After his battle with Rocco, Brown will be ready for Honey Boy Finnegan, Billy Foley or Eddie Martinelli, who claims that none of the boys around here care to meet him.

Jack McClellen, the Nashua lightweight, who recently fought draws with Young Tansy, Joe St. Helair, and won a decision over Walter Lee in Portsmouth, would like nothing better than to get a battle with Scoops White, or any other 140-lb. boy around.

Jack McClellen is waiting to hear from Eddie Mack, the manager of Eddie Rocco, relative to a battle McClellan has two victories over Rocco and says that he can make them a new offer. Mack is out for battle him he will take on Ted Coolidge.

Abe Friedman, the crack local banamweight, will start training at Providence with Kid Williams, the ex-bantamweight champion, on his comeback trail. Friedman, who has been laid up for two months with a bad nose, is O. K. again and he will try to annex a victory over the hard-hitting bantamweight from Baltimore. Williams and Friedman will toe the scratch at the Marieville A. C., and both boys have posted forfeits to do 118 pounds this afternoon at three o'clock. A victory for Friedman will send his stock sky high.

BOSTON HOCKEY CLUB PLAYS MAPLES

The Boston Hockey Club has a United States League game with the Maples at the Arena tonight.

Manager Sheridan may rearrange the Maples lineup. Brick Morrison, who is valuable in the forward line, may get the centre ice assignment with Chick Williams on right wing and Ernie Mosher on the other end.

Coach Charlie Foote praises the work of the Boston College forwards in the game against West Point. He says the team work of Jack Culhane, Sonny Foley and Red Groden in the overtime session, when they scored three goals, was the best he has seen this season.

Coach Foote also gives praise to the remarkable development of the West Point players under Marchard, the old Cleveland goalie, who is serving his first year with the Army.

Coach Foote figures that if his Boston College team can show the same style of play against the Nationals of Montreal in the game at the Arena Friday night, Boston fans will be treated to a grand display of hockey.

The Nationals play an open game and depend upon their stick skill to defeat opponents. That sort of opposition develops the good hockey of the Boston College players.

The Nationals are scheduled to play the Boston Hockey Club Saturday night in one part of a double-header. In the other end the B. A. A. will play New Haven in a United States League.

ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE RECONSIDERS PROBE

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 27.—After the assembly ways and means committee voted to authorize a sub-committee to investigate the charges against Tex Rickard by Tom O'Rourke, veteran fight promoter, the vote was reconsidered.

The motion to have an investigation into Tex O'Rourke charges was made by Assemblyman Steinberg.

It was carried, but subsequently Assemblyman Bert Lord, father of a bill to repeal the state boxing law, moved that the vote be reconsidered.

There was much surprise at the action taken by Lord, for several days ago he said he favored an investigation into the O'Rourke charges by the Legislature.

New York, Feb. 27.—The signed contract of Wayland Dean has arrived at the offices of the Giants. The document was filed away with satisfaction by Secretary Tierney.

Dean inclosed a note with the contract and said that he is on his way to the Giants' Spring establishment at Sarasota, Fla.

BERLIN HOCKEY SIX DEFEATS NEW HAVEN

Berlin, N. H., Feb. 26.—Berlin defeated New Haven 5-3 in one of the roughest games ever played here. Several attacks were broken. Shea and Rieure were ordered from the game after they engaged in a fist fight.

Rivard played a good game for the Bears. Cox made 9 stops for New Haven and Maltais 27 stops for Berlin.

THREE TEAMS WORK OUT IN TUFTS GYM

Mild weather brought out a big flock of athletes at Tufts College. Goddard "gym" was crowded as the baseball candidates and basketball players held practice sessions at the same time.

As the trackmen circled the indoor track, the battery candidates tossed baseballs in one corner and the basketball sharpshooters aimed for the nets in the other end.

Coaches Ken Nash, "Ollie" Westcott, D. D. Sample and Bill Meanix all were on hand and took charge of their teams. Twenty-five baseball candidates donned uniforms and under the direction of Ken Nash and Westcott they faced conditioning exercises.

Ty Cobb Bans Golf in Camp of Tigers

Detroit, Feb. 26.—Golf has been banned on the Detroit American League Baseball Club, reports from the Tiger training camp at Augusta, say. Manager Cobb confiscated several sets of mashies, midirons, drivers and spoons today from the baggage of the players and issued an edict against the Scotch pastime.

Twenty players have reported out of the thirty-eight ordered to camp. Most of the others are on the way or will be in camp March 1, Cobb said. Three pitchers—Johnson, Whitehill and Holloway—are among the absentees, and it is understood that they are having difficulties in reaching terms with the management. None of the trio, however, is regarded as a holdout.

SPORT FANS MUST KICK IN TO CARRY OUT OLYMPIC PLANS

APPEAL FOR FUNDS TO COUNTRY

By THOMAS L. CUMMISKEY.

The American Olympic committee is short about $54,000 of the required $46,000 due Saturday as first payment for the charter of the steamship America to transport 350 of our athletes to the Olympics in Paris this Summer.

Tris Speaker

It was revealed that only $146,500 of the amount is on hand despite the fact a campaign for a total of $350,000 for general expenses has been on for several months. The money is being sought by popular subscription, which to date has been a failure.

Democratic campaign chairmen throughout the country were requested today to do all possible to speed up the work. The trouble generally seems to be that people think of the Games as far off, and are not aware of certain financial obligations the American Olympic committee must meet from time to time.

Unless $46,000 is in hand by Saturday, it is feared the charter to the America will be forfeited, which would greatly embarrass the committee in its plans. Chairman Prout issued the general appeal.

Promoter Tex Rickard cabled Quintin Romero Rojas, the Chilean heavyweight champion, an offer of $100,000 to fight Jack Dempsey if he makes good against three American fighters.

It is Rickard's plan to pit the Chilean against Floyd Johnson, Fred Fulton and Jack Renault in bouts leading up to a Dempsey battle. It is understood that Romero-Rojas was amenable to such conditions. He recently accepted an offer of $7500 for one bout, and explained he was willing to take two others.

At the Firpo-Lodge fight last night, the Chilean challenged the winner, but Firpo has plans to leave Buenos Aires for this country after his bout with Ernino Spalla, Italian champion, March 7.

Perhaps Rickard's dickering with the Chilean will cause Firpo to think differently about passing up the promoter's offer of $200,000 for a fight with Harry Wills. Especially as Lew Raymond's "syndicate"—its backers were never announced—has now had a hitch with Firpo regarding the senor being wholly under their control in this country.

From Sarasota, training camp of the Giants, comes the report that the Florida law against Sunday baseball was unofficially suspended in the players being allowed to practice. No admission was charged, so there was no official interference. Attempts, it is said, will be made later to put on Sunday exhibition games. The plea will be that admissions are charged at golf games on Sundays with no interference. Nine major league teams in Florida will be very much interested—the club owners anyway.

"Who is the biggest player in the junior leagues?"

When it comes to size, it is Phil Bedgood, a pitcher on the Cleveland Indians. He weighs 227. And he's trying to take a fish or so off at Hot Springs, Ark.

COMMERCE RIFLES WILL SHOOT TECH

The High School of Commerce's undefeated rifle team were to meet the Tech freshman shooters this afternoon at the Bay State School of Musketry. Tech has some fine marksmen on its freshman squad, but Commerce, upon consideration of the long string of victories with which its shooters have pierced the targets, should win.

Marvin, captain of the team, and B. Levine, both veterans, are 100 per cent. men, and are the most dangerous threats of the Commerce team. Bliss, Keough and Ferguson have reached the perfection mark also. Richmond, Moffitt, Peter, Levey and Grossman are on the roster.

WESTBORO PITCHER GOES TO ATLANTA

Westboro, Feb. 27.—Fred Spates, Jr., a member of the Yankees, who has been let out to Atlanta of the Southern association, will leave Westboro Friday for Atlanta. He looks forward to his best year in baseball and has been anxious for the past year to get into the Southern association.

SKATING AFTER THE GAME

Pretty Lowell Schoolgirl a Knockout as Matchmaker at Big Fight Club

MISS VERONICA SULLIVAN

Wherefore Miss Sullivan isn't arranging happy engagements or weddings, or things like that.

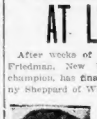
She's "booking" fights for the Moody A. C. of Lowell so successfully that the directors of the club wish she had been on the job a long, long time ago. Within a few weeks Miss Sullivan has put on bouts that have fractured all attendance records at the "fight" club. And, as she says herself, she's only beginning.

The pioneer in this new job for women is just a girl out of high school two years. She tried stenogging, and then became secretary for Lowell Dodge, the Moody A. C. president and matchmaker. A short time ago Mr. Dodge dropped a revolver and accidently shot himself in the leg. He has been in the hospital ever since.

But his club has been thriving. His secretary stepped right into the picture, put on a battle, without any instructions or advice. Her start was so good that the directors gave her a free hand, and now she's well on the way toward being one of the best promoters in this section of the boxing universe.

FRIEDMAN WILL BOX SHEPPARD AT LYNN

After weeks of challenging, Abe Friedman, New England bantam champion, has finally induced Johnny Sheppard of Woburn to sign for a return battle, and they will clash in the feature bout at the Casino A. C., Lynn, next Monday night.



Johnny Sheppard

Sheppard and Friedman met at the Lynn club about six weeks ago and after ten furious rounds Sheppard was awarded the decision, but Friedman always thought that he received a little the worst of it from the officials.

The New England champion was tickled to death when told that Sheppard had agreed to meet him again and he promises to muss up the Woburn Tanner plenty when they clash Monday night.

Sheppard isn't worrying at all over what Friedman proposes to do to him, as he says he licked him once and will have no trouble doing it the second time.

Matty Co rdes of West Lynn and Young Ross of East Lynn will settle the bantam supremacy of the Shoe City in the semi-final.

Two six-round preliminaries will complete the bill.

Baseball Notes

Pittsburgh—Charlie Grimm, first baseman for the Pittsburgh Club, has signed a contract for one year and taken the rattler for the Spring training camp at Paso Robles, Cal. Details of the contract were not announced. Grimm refused to accompany other players to Paso Robles last week and declared that the salary mentioned in his contract was unsatisfactory.

* * *

St. Paul, Minn.—Mike Gonzalez, catcher of the St. Paul Club of the American Association, and Charlie Dressen, local third baseman, have been sold to Cincinnati. Gonzalez reports at once, while Dressen will play this season with St. Paul.

* * *

Reading, Pa.—The sale of Infielder Fred Thomas, formerly of the Athletics and Red Sox, by the Reading International League Club to Buffalo is announced. Thomas recently was traded to Nashville of the Southern League, but refused to report.

* * *

St. Louis—Milton Hyland of New Britain, Ct., a semi-pro pitcher, has been signed by the Browns. Hyland is a left-hander, and according to Business Manager Bill Friel, struck out seventy-one batters in five games last year.

* * *

Eddie Record, the light-stepping light-heavyweight champion of New England, wants to know why Jack Sharkey is sidestepping him. Four clubs have offered Johnny Buckley very satisfactory inducements for Sharkey to mingle with Record.

B. A. A. Has 14 Relays for School Meet

Andover will meet the undefeated Medford relay four at the B. A. A. carnival on Saturday. Exeter will be paired with Huntington, B. C. High with Lynn Classical, and Commerce with Dorchester and Mechanic Arts.

Bill Dooley

The Andover-Medford two-mile relay run will be the feature of Saturday's meet. The Medford team is Harrington, Moore, Hennie Hormell, Walter Riedon and "Fish" Ellis. Andover's quartet is made up of Holmes, Paxton, Thomson and Glendenning, with Roberts as a last minute choice.

Medford has entered sixteen and so has Andover, and from a glance at the entries, the meet will be a battle between these two schools.

Hank Moore, who has the happy faculty of cleaning up everything in sight when it comes to the dash, should bring home five points, although "Red" Burns of Huntington, former Exeter runner, and Cadran of B. C. High, should give him a good fight.

Medford's other points should come by way of Harold Moody, who has done better than six feet in the high jump, and Hennie Hormell, Joe Orpen, Fred Parshley, Tatton, Archie Suretis, Ted Gan and Blood Stewart should clinch the meet with seconds and thirds.

Gordon Clarke of Huntington is expected to set a new record in the 600. His best time is 1:19, which is only two-fifths out of the way of a record. "Abe" Woodley of B. C. High, who has been tossing the shot recently to 46 feet, 5 inches, is out after the record of 47 feet 11 inches.

Bill Dooley of Huntington, in practice set up a new record of 2:23.4 for the Y. M. C. A. gym 1,000, and may run off with this event. However, Al O'Neil, captain of the Exeter team, and considered one of the best schoolboy half-mile runners in the East, will press him hard. Leo Fallon, Mechanic Arts flash, who won this event at the Harvard interscholastics two weeks ago, must not be left out of the consideration.

In the high hurdles Fred Parshley of Medford should add another win, with Dooley of B. C. High a close second.

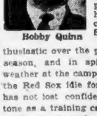
High School of Commerce vs. Dorchester vs. Mechanic Arts.
Brighton vs. Jamaica Plain vs. East Boston.
South Boston vs. Hyde Park vs. Boston Trade School.
Somerville vs. Winthrop vs. Fairhaven.
Andover vs. Medford.
Exeter vs. Huntington.
Malden vs. Everett.
B. C. High vs. Lynn Classical.
English vs. Boston Latin.
Arlington vs. Quincy.
Portland vs. Brockton.
Newton vs. Brookline.
Browne & Nichols vs. Roxbury
Noble & Greenough vs. Powder Point.

QUINN OFF FOR THE SOUTHERN JAUNT

President J. A. Robert Quinn of the Red Sox starts today on a trip to San Antonio, Tex., the training camp of the Pennant club.



Bobby Quinn

Quinn will stop off at St. Louis and expects to finish his lonely cross country trip Saturday night.

Quinn is enthusiastic over the prospects for the season, and in spite of the cold weather at the camp, which has kept the Red Sox idle for three days, he has not lost confidence in San Antone as a training camp.

"That's exceptional weather for San Antonio, and the Red Sox got the worst of it," said Quinn.

Quinn is pleased to know that Dudley Lee, holdout shortstop, has signed. As the Red Sox boss predicted the youngster has fallen into line.

Quinn received word from the player that after a short business trip to Kansas City, he will report to the camp.

EAGLE FIVE TO PLAY TECH TONIGHT

Boston College will meet Technology tonight at the Beaver gymnasium. The Tech-B. C. game always has been one of the big features on both cards. The teams seem evenly matched.

Bill Morley

Both Ice Eagle and M. I. T. have lost to the Champlain Vermont quintet, and by practically the same score. The Vermont defeat was the only one suffered by the Eagle this year at the hands of a college quintet. They have won seven and lost two games.

The game this evening will be the last for B. C. before they play the rest of the series with Holy Cross. With Davidson, who occasionally plays centre, and "Abie" Smith, former T. M. C. A. star, both in the wing lineup, the Eagle forwards will have plenty of opposition.

B. C. however, is ready for action, as they have not played a game for two weeks, on account of the cancelation of the Lowell trip.

Mooney and Melley, who are tied for highest honors in the scoring line, will decide their dispute tonight.

Mooney, who never played college basketball until he went into last year's Tech battle, was largely responsible for B. C.'s victory at that time.

White Sox Buy Moore

Basketball Notes

Fiddie Morley

The Boston Whirlwinds, champions of New England, are booked with three hard opponents for this week. The first tussle will be tonight when they clash with the Haverhill Pros at Lafayette Hall, Haverhill. They will then jump to the Granite State where they have an engagement with the Wilton, N. H. quintet and on Saturday the Boston outfit will battle the All-Hartford team.

Sunday they have another stiff opponent in the Tattville, Ct., team. The work of Nate Hurwitz and "Fiddle" Morley has been sensational.

The Rockland baseball team will journey to Brockton tonight and battle with the Oko Club five in a South Shore league tussle. Although the team from the Fair City is leading the league, it will find plenty of trouble.

There are no Greater Boston League games tonight. The boys are resting till Friday evening, when Mt. Pleasant C. A. meet the Cathedral five.

ACTION PLENTY AT DILBOY RING SHOW

Plenty of action is assured the followers of the amateur pugilistic art who plan to take in the tournament staged under the auspices of Dilboy Post, V. F. W., in K. of C. Hall, Highland avenue, Somerville, tomorrow evening.

Freddie Russo

The cream of the amateurs in the 112, 118, 125, 135 and 147 pound and heavyweight classes have entered.

Maurice Lesgris, of Lawrence, is entered in the 125 pound class. He has appeared in amateur circles for two years, and has won 28 bouts via the K. O. route, and at present is better than ever.

It is expected that he will run against some strong competition at this show. Although Despres is built along frail lines, he carries the hitting power of a heavyweight in his left.

The bouts will start at 8:30, and extra car service will be provided before and after the show.

TRAWLER COMBER IS TOWED INTO PORT

The steam trawler Comber was towed into port from the Georges banks fishing grounds today by the trawler Petrelo. The main steam pipe on the Comber burst last Sunday and Capt. Jethro Nickerson sent a wireless message for help. The Petrel responded three hours later having abandoned her own fishing nearby when she picked up the Comber's S. O. S. call, and steamed to the rescue. No one was injured on the Comber when the steam pipe burst.

MILLIONAIRE TO QUIT HIS COWS FOR OIL WELLS

Farmer Tyler Going West to Inspect Ranch Left to His Sister and Himself

Rutland, Vt., Feb. 27.—Tyler S. Hart of North Clarendon, millionaire to a share in more than $1,000,000, having coaxed a competence out of a 200-acre Vermont farm and herd of graded Holstein milch cows, is going out to California to dabble a bit in oil.

Hart and his sister, Jennie Bell Hart Leonard, school teacher and farmerette of Clarendon, have been notified that they are entitled to the major portion of the Sacramento, Cal., estate of their aunt, Mrs. Ellen M. Wilson, who died in 1913.

Five thousand acres of rich California ranch lands comprise the estate. Tyler Hart doesn't talk much of what he's going to do with the property. Like another famous Vermonter, "Ty" is strictly uncommunicative.

WILL HUNT FOR OIL.

But he's learned from some source that there's sure signs of oil and mineral deposits on the huge Western lands to which, with his sister, he has fallen heir.

"Tyler is going out there to have the property surveyed. He won't go to farming it, you can bet, if there's oil or gold there, as he has been told," said H. C. Monson, brother-in-law of the "millionaire milkman."

"Ty won't stay there, though. He'll leave the property in good hands. Then he'll return to North Clarendon, and I am sure he won't give up the profitable milk business he's built up in and about Rutland."

TO AWAIT DECISION.

Mrs. Leonard was more talkative. "In the first place," she said smilingly, taking one more look at something she had in the oven and holding her apron to the stove door as she closed it gently, "Mrs. Ellen W. Wilson's heirs are not merely my brother and I, but number some nineteen nephews and nieces.

"In the second place, the statement that a recent decision of the Appellate Court was 'final' is not exactly correct. Thomas McConnell, the dissatisfied litigant, has announced his intention to carry the matter to the Supreme Court of California. I do not know that Mr. McConnell will go that far, but if he does it may be a year or years before anybody gets any portion of my aunt's fortune.

"This issue Mrs. Wilson, who was our Aunt Ellen Flanagan, married Thaddeus McConnell, and Thomas McConnell's only interest in the estate is by reason of his relationship to the ti husband.

"When the time comes, my brother Tyler will go out to California and look the situation over. I mean, in the event of a final decision in our favor. There isn't any necessity of the whole park and parcel of us going, until we know we have something to go for.

"Every one of us is accustomed to working for what we get and we have no complaints to make. I taught school in my younger days and my daughter, Kiln, is teaching today. My son, George Hart Leonard —George is twenty-six—owns a farm near our own. My husband is with him today, helping him to get started."

DROPPING PASS "WOULD BOOST R. R. FARES"

Delano's Bill Opposed by the Trainmen, Who Consider Them Part of Wages

Abolition of railroad passes would mean increased railroad rates, the Committee on Railroads was informed at a stormy session today.

The hearing was on the petition of Raymond P. Delano that railroad corporations, street railway companies and telephone and telegraph companies be prohibited from giving reduced rates of service to their employes or others.

Representatives of railroad men's organizations, in opposing the bill, declared the pass privilege was always included in wage agreements.

They stated that if passes were abolished they would immediately demand an increase in wages, which would in turn result in increased rates.

Speaking for the petition, Mr. Delano said the issuance of passes and granting of special rates to employes constituted bonuses and created a privilege class. He thought employes should be given the same treatment as everyone else, ven if it meant higher rates.

Portland Doctor Ordered to Quit Country

DR. FRANK CRANE ON THE BY-PRODUCTS OF CROOKEDNESS

By Dr. Frank Crane

THE most important part of a business is often its By Products.

One reason why the great meat packing houses make more money than individual concerns is that all the by-products are saved.

Time was when the by-products of making gas out of coal were thrown away. The sticky, oily, smelly refuse was discarded. But one of the greatest triumphs of science is in this by-product. It contains a perfect mine of wealth.

The Dye industry, the making of Perfumes, of Medicines, and Explosives and other things has been revolutionized by the products of coal tar.

The by products of civilization such as city slums, penitentiaries and asylums present far-reaching problems.

The sourdest view of life is that the thing we call Success is soundest and most satisfactory when it is a by product of righteousness; that if we seek first righteousness "all these things shall be added unto us."

And then there are the by-products of crookedness and it is worth thinking about if we are ever inclined to take up crookedness as a livelihood or even as a diversion.

One trouble with crookedness is that it is like drug-taking. We cannot tell where to stop. Crookedness is dangerous because it is habit forming.

One correlative of crookedness is that it is fatal to friendship and friendship is probably the best social product in the world. It is hard for a liar to keep a friend.

The crooked shopkeeper cannot trust his clerks for if the clerks are instructed to deal deviously with the customers how does the boss know that the same clerks will not tap the till? If it is right to swindle the public why is it not right to cheat the boss?

Another by-product of crookedness is worry. The trouble with a lie is that you have to tell another lie. Lies, in fact, breed faster than Belgian hares. And the little verse is entirely sound which says:

"Oh what a tangled web we weave
When first we practice to deceive!"

Nobody is smart enough to be a consistent liar. But one does not have to be clever in order to tell the truth.

Lies are a terrible tax on the memory. Most men are honest simply because it is the easiest way.

The cheat has to lie awake nights thinking how he can square himself.

The honest man knows that the stars in their courses are fighting for him.

There is no doubt that sometimes you can make a dollar by being crooked. The only trouble is that it is going to cost you fifty or a hundred dollars in the by-products of crooked ness.

Various Things

Copyright 1924 Star Co

Many Americans have stepped from one high position to another, but Aviator Loon of Texas holds the record. He stepped from one airplane to another to let the pilot of the other plane rescue a woman parachute jumper tangled up beneath it. The thing was done a mile above the ground.

We who are all here physically ought to be able to stand on our own feet, if Stanley McBride, who lost a foot in France, can play ball well enough to stand a chance to become catcher of the University of Michigan baseball team.

Henry Ford made his railroad, the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton, pay last year. In 1920, when Ford bought it, it finished with a deficit of over two million dollars, but in 1923 it came through about $1,786,924 to the good.

Ford repaired old locomotives, electrified parts of the line, and has constantly cultivated closer relations with his men. He lets them buy special 6 per cent. certificates in the road and the employes give the best there is in them, for they are working for themselves.

The clothes worn by Abraham Lincoln when he was assassinated have been sold at auction for $6,500. This is several times as much as Mr. Lincoln spent for his wardrobe throughout his entire life.

Pullman Motor Bodies

When Will Pullman Flying Cars Come?

Copyright 1924 Star Co

Mr. Carry, head of the Pullman Car Company, has gone into the automobile business—to the extent of making steel automobile bodies. If he will put in those bodies the kind of glass that doesn't SHATTER, doesn't break off into big pieces and cut your throat in case of collision, the bodies ought to be very popular. It is incredible that people should ride about at forty or fifty miles an hour, entirely surrounded by heavy glass that would shatter at any impact—especially when PERFECTLY SAFE GLASS CAN BE MADE.

How long will it be, by the way, before the Pullman Company will be making bodies for flying machines to carry people from New York to Florida, from Chicago to California, and from all over the United States to Seattle—which, says Seattle, is worth all the rest of the country put together?

200,000 INJURED YEARLY IN MINES

Washington, Feb. 27.—Injuries from coal mine accidents in the United States total approximately 200,000 a year and represent a property loss of nearly $33,000,000. Estimates made by the Bureau of Mines today, however, showed that only 2 per cent. of the accidents result in deaths and less than 5 per cent. in permanent injuries.

CHEMIST FINDS WAY TO BUILD NITRATES FROM THE AIR

WILL PRODUCE UNLIMITED AMOUNT OF FERTILIZER

After months of research Professor A. B. Lamb of the chemistry department of Harvard University, with the assistance of Alfred T. Larson, Ph. D., has evolved what in chemistry is called a "catalyst" a means of forcing nitrogen in the air to combine with other substances to form compounds indispensable in the manufacture of fertilizers and explosives.

"So Germans delayed firing the first gun in the conflict for world dominion, until her chemists has found a means of taking nitrates from the air—for without nitrates Germany would soon have been without explosives.

"It remained for the brilliant German investigator, Haber, first to find a means of squeezing, under pressure of thousands of pounds to the square inch, the atoms of hydrogen and nitrogen together so as to produce the precious nitrate ammonia.

"This he accomplished with the aid of a substance which we call a catalyst. It caused the hydrogen and nitrogen atoms to stick together and, when passed through a cooling device forms liquid ammonia nitrate.

YIELDS DOUBLE.

"Haber was able to extract 7 or 8 per cent. of ammonia whereas our new catalyst will yield at least 14 per cent. and we are not through yet.

"Now a catalyst in appearance is a substance not unlike small lumps of anthracite coal. It is composed of potash, aluminum and other substances.

"Due to the good offices of the late President Wilson we were enabled to conduct our experiments in the generously equipped Fixed Nitrogen Laboratory at Washington

"There we constructed our bombs, mixing shells. Before we found a steel material which would withstand the tremendous pressure needed, we kept six different varieties of steel under pressure and the action of [illegible] gases for a whole year.

"One shell burst in three months, another in four, but after a full year a shell built of chrome-vanadium Pad withstood all pressure and chemical action. Then we built our testing bombs

UNDER GREAT PRESSURE.

"This was after the war. During that great conflict the whole world was roused to the value of nitrates in warfare

"Our mixing bombs in the Washington laboratory were put to great tests during our experiments. At times we drove the pressure up to 4,500 pounds the square inch and with the aid of our newly found catalyst substance we were able to obtain as high as 80 per cent. of the valuable nitrate

"Of course we couldn't maintain that pressure in the tanks. We would have blown our building and a good part of the neighboring buildings way into the sky

"But all we need is a bomb constructed of metal of sufficient strength to withstand added pressure and we'd ought to be able to extract a large percentage of the much-needed nitrates from the air.

STUDIED GERMAN METHOD.

"I would like to see Henry Ford, or someone anyone take hold of the great Muscle Shoals plants for the work. At present further experiments are going on at the Washington laboratory and I have obtained the right to license independent companies to operate the nitrate-forming machinery with our patented catalyst

"Finally for the United States this discovery means cheaper ammonia, cheaper nitrogenous fertilizers and therefore cheaper food, in addition to the powerful wartime resource of unlimited nitrates for explosives."

Professor Lamb for several years has been the director of the Harvard laboratory and, during the war, as Lieutenant-Colonel in the Chemical Warfare Service and in charge of the Defense Chemical Research, was appointed director of the government laboratory. With several other army officers, after the war he was sent to Germany to inspect the factory which the Germans had constructed during the war to manufacture nitrates from the air. Under his direction the investigations were undertaken. The present director of the laboratory is Dr. F. G. Cottrell.

Lock Police Station to Bar Out Girl Bandit

New York, Feb. 27.—They locked the front door of Brooklyn Police Headquarters last night for the first time in twelve years, and hereafter the entrance is to be closed nightly from 5 p. m. to 8 a. m. A city locksmith oiled and repaired the lock, for the key had not been turned since the building was opened, in 1912.

The official explanation was that the door was closed to save the services of two doormen. Unofficial explanations were that it was to shut out lawyers' runners and fire insurance adjusters, known as "ambulance chasers" and "fire bugs."

It was also pointed out that Brooklyn's bobbed-haired girl bandit would be unable to use the front entrance if she called.

EXPERT FINDS WHAT MAKES WOMEN WILD

Teasing, Flirting, Bossing, Wrong Phone Numbers, Among Causes

New York, Feb. 27 (C.N.S.)—What makes women wild is a question that frequently has undone those who have tried to solve it.

History is out-[illegible] permanently warped wherever anyone has driven a woman sufficiently wild to send her into action.

Feminine fury, after centuries of scientific research, still stands unchallenged as a motive power.

Dr. Georgiana Stickland Gates, psychology instructor, makes public the results of "anger tests" applied to Barnard students. She discloses:

Attempts at flirting, teasing, bossing, advice, interruption, contradiction, sarcasm, wrong telephone numbers, broken watches or glasses, insults, unjust accusations and the intellectual superiority of others. These things make Barnard "blood Boil."

SARCASM A STINGER.

Sarcasm makes the Barnard girl maddest than a broken watch crystal because her anger reacts more quickly to persons than things. Before meals she is more susceptible to spleen than after her appetite is appeased. Fatigue and overwork likewise render a Barnard student prey to angry passions.

Dr. Mary Halton, well known physician, amplifies the discussion into the fact that women generally are "bad by ill temper more than men" Because anger is hatred. Hatred

"I love are psychological pals Love being woman's chief occupation, she is therefore susceptible to various expressions of hatred

"Woman hates more murderously than man," Dr. Halton asserts.

"Woman's sphere, still to a great extent, is in the home. And there [illegible] are her angriest displayed. The home is where she loves deeply; it is [illegible] where her deepest angers are aroused.

"Woman in the home—which is her business—has to put up with a male [illegible] they expect, that is what every man is in his own home. Her business people can endure them some way.

"But, in the home, here is a man who cannot sew, but scathingly criticizes sewing w[illegible] cannot cook, but denounces cooking; who doesn't know a thing about clothes or furniture, unless he's in the business—but makes fun of them.

"That man, uninformed as to the conduct of stoves and the desire of a child to turn itself into a devil, is ready to lecture on these subjects. He runs here a fine mine historical efficiency expert

"That's what makes women wild in the home

"Many men go through life teasing their wives about large feet or being fat. These women finally get the reputation of being saddened proof, nothing up with it. How my mother could cook is another famous method of teasing

CAN'T TAKE A JOKE

"Man's reply is that a woman can't take a joke. But it is a man's method of making a joke that a woman can't endure—a method [illegible] can't feel on speak. [illegible] on cigarettes. At present the home is operated in an amateur way which is enough to anger any woman."

SLAYERS BARE CRIMES UNDER 'TRUTH SERUM'

Alabama Axe Murderers Confess When Placed Under Spell of Scopolamin

Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 27.—New leads, important clews and actual confessions were given by prisoners examined while under the influence of Scopolamin according to Solicitor James G. Davis, who used the "truth serum" on thirteen Alabama prisoners, most of them suspects in the notorious axe murders that for three years had shocked the South.

The case of Peyton Johnson, negro, one of the suspects is typical. In the opinion of Solicitor Davis Johnson, who is now being held in jail, is charged with participation in crimes other than the axe assaults.

The prisoners to whom the powerful drug was administered were under its influence for varying degrees of time, generally from half an hour to three hours. Practically all of them talked freely.

Johnson who had denied without reservation that he had been connected with any of the brutal axe assaults told according to Solicitor Davis' records, on which all his testimony when under scopolamin [illegible] son, the records show, admitted killing a man named Turner and stealing a watch. Turner was killed with an axe.

Another negro, Nelse Jackson, who was with Johnson at the time of the aged attack, corroborated, according to Solicitor Davis' records, the testimony of Johnson.

Testimony offered in another case [illegible] out of the double murder of two women—was given by Lonnie Gilder and Ernest Harris while under the truth serum. Gilder admitted killing one of the women and said Harris killed the other. They stole two watches from their victims.

HERRICK SAYS SEARS BROKE WITH WILLETT

Declares Co-Plaintiff in Suit Was Dissatisfied and Refused Directorship Offer

Richmond H. Sears was dissatisfied with the manner in which his partner, George F. Willett conducted the affairs of Willett, Sears & Co., according to Robert F. Herrick, on the stand in Dedham Court today in the $15,000,000 suit of Willett against Herrick and a group of Boston bankers.

Herrick stated that in 1918, when a bank syndicate took over the affairs of Willett & Sears, in accord with a $700,000 loan agreement, he was not unfriendly to Mr. Willett

He said he asked Sears to remain as a director of the American Felt Company one of the Willett enterprises Sears, according to Herrick told him that he was never going into business again with Mr. Willett and refused

There was a tilt between counsel in the case when Attorney Sherman Whipple, representing Willett sought to have the minutes of certain directors' meetings read.

Attorney Hugh McClellan, representing Herrick, objected on the ground that the trial would be drawn out greatly by the reading

"No doubt you would like to keep a lot of evidence from being introduced on the ground that it would save time," was Whipple's retort.

20,000 SCHOOL CHILDREN ARE KILLED YEARLY

Many of These Deaths Could Be Prevented by Education, Leaders Say

Chicago, Feb. 27.—Discussion of subjects covering the whole gamut of educational problems from safety instruction in schools, to the amount of time that should be devoted to music teaching occupied the group meetings of the National Education Association department of superintendence today.

Superintendent William McAndrew of Chicago and Superintendent Milton Potter of Milwaukee have been nominated for president of the department.

Albert W. Whitney, chairman of the education section of the National Safety Council, told the convention that 20,000 children of school age were killed each year in the country by accident, and 18,000 persons killed by automobiles. By proper education, he said, the number could be greatly reduced.

With 35 per cent. of school time devoted to hygiene, physical training, music and the practical and fine arts, there still is room for more of this training, regarded by many as an "educational fad," John K. Norton, director of the research division of the National Education Association, said.

"Those who criticize the school for time spent in music and fine arts fail to recognize that one of the main objectives of the modern school should be the training for the proper use of leisure time," he declared.

"Our schools are in the 'milk teeth' stage of development," C. B. Cornell, superintendent of Shaker Heights schools, Cleveland, declared. "The work of the average child is too soft and lacks the depth of concentration which makes for vigorous character development," he said.

Nearly three million boys and girls between the ages of fourteen and eighteen did not attend any school in 1920, Margaret Alhucker, assistant director of the education association's research division, declared, urging part time education as a solution of the problem caused by the insufficient education of children.

"CHICKIE"

The Beautiful, but Bluntly Honest Story of a Boston Girl

By ELENORE MEHERIN

Seething Life of a Lovely Boston Girl of This Strange Today

THE STORY OF "CHICKIE" THUS FAR

Chickie Bryce's first romance ended disastrously. At seventeen she had created the illusion that Arthur Sontag, a school chum, was going to propose to her, but when he announced he was going away she was broken-hearted. Then Chickie's chum, Mary Blake, was married. At eighteen Chickie secured a position in a broker's office and there met Janina, a girl wise in the ways of the world. Jimmie, Mary's brother, declares his love for Chickie, but she puts him off. Chickie meets a number of men and finally goes on a party with Jake Munson and a bunch of his friends, but her father is alarmed over what he terms his girl's waywardness.

CHICKIE took a sprig of blossoms from the vase her mother had filled, smelt it dreamily. She would step into this sun that flowed down the street like a great golden bath she would take a little run down to the Blakes. She had a question for Martha.

She wanted to say, carelessly, "Martha Blake, who is the Blessed Damozel?"

Jonathan was in the living room. She heard him rustling the papers. She planned to dash in breathlessly, give him half a dozen kisses and, before he had his breath again, she would be gone.

But Jonathan, one eye on the hall, had other plans. As Chickie came running in he stood up—rugged, gigantic — enough to strike terror in any heart but hers.

"Oh—you old piefiace! Sitting in here alone! Here, bend down—a kiss, please."

He kissed her and held her. "It was after two when you got in, Chickie. What does this mean?"

"Pooh! Who wants to know?" "Your father wants to know!" Every word a bolt.

She laughed, but nervously. "Well if that's the way you're going to roar——"

"I'm not fooling, Chickie. There's no rhyme or reason in a girl of your age coming home at 2 o'clock in the morning."

"Oh—ho-ho—it wasn't four! That's the time you used to arrive! You've sat here hundreds of times and boasted about the parties that didn't end until the next day——"

She tried to shove him on the defensive, cramming his own words down his throat.

He grew pale: "Chickie, are you going to treat me like this?"

"Oh, Jonathan, begin the sob stuff, now! What- that did I do? I was only fooling with you. Stand up there so stiff. You want to make me cry, I suppose——"

And she went stammering into a quick account of the long dinner, the dancing—the fun and all the people. She said, ending: "If you were there you'd not get home at all. You ought to go some night and take Jennie. Why don't you? It's wonderful! Now —do you think you ought to stand there glowering like this—horrible old Jonathan——"

She dropped her head quickly. He came and put his arms about her shoulders. "I don't want to pry too much, Chickie. You're the only thing I have. I've worried a lot. I shouldn't let you go out with these strange young men without even seeing them."

"What do you mean? Don't you think I can look out for myself?"

"I mean that from now on you'll bring these men into this house first. There'll be no more tooting of a horn for you."

"Oh—nobody does that today. Why—you want to make a laughing stock of me . . ."

"Don't worry about that, Chickie. A man will respect you the more——"

"Any old time! Listen Jona than—you won't do that?

"Are you ashamed of your father?"

"Oh, all right, all right—but if you go handing out any woof woof talk I'm going out tonight with Barry Dunne. If you spoil that, Jonathan—you'll just break my heart . . ."

Not as Jubilant

"If what I do can spoil it, Chickie—then your heart will have to break—you don't go out with him till I see him."

Not quite so jubilant—not quite so thrilled with her own youth and prettiness, Chickie walked down the block. She gulped once or twice. She didn't have to take orders from Jonathan. He didn't own her. She'd tell him that.

Oh, yes! And have him give her a hurt, tragic look as though she were stepping on his throat!

They took advantage of her love—Jonathan and her mother did. She knew it. She could no more stand up and say to them: "I earn my own way. I'll do as I please," than she could strike them. She would suffer and subterfuge, any evasion, rather than deal them a blow like that.

Just the same, she was determined rigidly on one thing—she would not turn her back on all the new pleasures that were now opening to her. Oh, she had wanted them far too long!

Sunday after Sunday when she had loafed around the house visited Mary or gone to a movie with Jimmy, how she had longed to be racing down the country in an automobile, speeding off on a joyous picnic to some beautiful woodside. Often when she saw the machines—thousands of them returning in the evening down the boulevards and the fruit blossoms, red pepper berries, poppies waving from the sides she had stood still with eagerness, she had thought with glistening expectance: "Some day! My turn! Soon!"

Had a Right

Now it was come . . . the bright new life. She ran to meet it, ardently waiting for it to sweep upon her like a tide, strong and beautiful, alive with its own music. Oh—she was young. She had a right to this.

Half way up the garden walk she plucked a pink rose, ran her trembling fingers over the soft leaves. What was Jonathan going to say? Would he insult her? Would he lay down some ridiculous law?

She wondered what Martha Blake would say to this. Chickie had a picture in her mind of the Blake mother. It was of a tall, ample busted woman—an elemental figure, carrying a baby on her hip—always a baby. Cooking the dinner, standing at the door to buy vegetables from a peddler, the "immortal infant," as Mary called it, was always in evidence.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS---

By HELEN ROWLAND

NOW, my Daughter, it came to pass that four Wise Men were gathered unto her, that they might proclaim the Greatest Invention of Man.

And the first Wise Man spoke, saying:

"Behold the airplane and the submarine! Are not these the most godlike of all human inventions? For with them, men may fly through the air and sail under the water—and thus keep the world safe for democracy!"

But the second Wise Man gainsaid him, answering.

"Nay, verily. The most wondrous of all man's achievements are the printing press and the wireless and the radio. For with these men may harmonize their thoughts over all the earth—and thus make the world safe for science and culture and freedom."

And the third Wise Man protested:

"Go to. We have both spoken foolishly. For the gas engine and the electric grill are the mightiest of all new things; since with these men may satisfy their stomachs and guard their digestions—and thus make the world safe for Good Cooking!"

But the fourth Wise Man lifted up his hands and mocked them, saying:

"Be still, oh, ye Simple Ones! The world hath existed, and men have lived thereon and been happy without these things, and could exist and be happy without you, as I even without you!"

But when have men lived without LOVE?

Therefore, cease from these idle quibblings. I adjure you

For the last 4 months, and [illegible] that

I have had little fear of man from the face of a savage into a thing of beauty.

Yea, and that which hath transformed woman from a house [illegible] of ornament and loveliness

For these have converted likes from an instinct into a fine art and turned marriage from a dispensation to a delight.

SELAH!

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

—By Beatrice Fairfax—

Who Holds a Unique Position in the Writing World as an Authority on the Problems of Girls

"CAN I [illegible] warning the girls who actually defeat their love by protesting it so much that it becomes a nuisance," writes Richard H. F. M[illegible]. "I [illegible] interested in my chum, who was really deeply in love with her until she began protesting him all the time. She wants him to go to the dances with her to that dinner, to take a walk on Sunday afternoon, to [illegible] and it's got to the point where he's [illegible] and all I can get [illegible] I will spare you the need of considering.

A Popular Girl

"Now Beryl is a pretty girl and a popular one, and I always thought she had a lot of sense. She is twenty-one, and my pal is twenty-six and in a position to marry her and make her a nice home. But if she keeps this up he's going to turn. I'm a friend and I know. Beryl means well. She wants to give Hal a good time, to help him meet the right people, and to show him off as her conquest. But, believe me, she won't have any conquest before long if she goes on pestering Hal with her 'phone calls and her plans and her everlasting devotion.

"I've told her my opinion, but she says that real love should be fearless and honest, and that is her idea of closing the subject. But I ask you to put the modern girl wise to the fact that in spite of all the success the vamp and the independent girls may have, men still like to do a little of the wooing."

I was just settling with appreciation over the clear and honest statement of facts friend Richard's letter makes, when I picked up this letter from a girl:

"I love a man devotedly and know that down in his heart he loves me. But I realize that I care so much for him that I pester him. How can I show my sweetheart I care for him without pushing myself in his way? I long a few words from him, but I know that if I do he will think I keep from hearing from me through fault but that of being so devoted" —Helen."

Richard's Letter

I hope Helen will read Richard's letter and that she will stop and think about the revelation in Helen's words. And I hope even more that all loyal strong aggressive souls will ponder Richard's letter.

Men [illegible] a certain mass to what [illegible] amount of woo[illegible] but I've met [illegible] them and I'd the [illegible] the various methods narrated by Shaw and others of the modern [illegible] I've [illegible] who [illegible] to the [illegible] by so much as I would [illegible] [illegible] him with [illegible] of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

SEEK QUALITY IN AMPLIFYING ON RADIO

How to Arrange Auto-Frequency Amplifier With This in Mind

By THE RADIATOR.

The development of radio this season has been toward better quality of reproduction in amplification than toward just volume as such.

The audio-frequency amplifier presented today is designed with this in mind, although an amplifier built like this should give plenty of satisfaction on the matter of volume.

The average two stage amplifier as constructed by the average fan amplifies the detector output about 300 times. This has been indicated by actual tests with an audibility meter.

With high B battery voltage and power tubes, audibility readings up to 1600 have been obtained for two stage amplifiers, but this usually causes distortion. A good amplifier should show an audibility of about 400. The amplifier to be described should give results of about this.

In designing this amplifier, advantage is taken of good amplifying power of the ordinary transformer and also of the clearness and fidelity assured by choke coil coupling.

LOW RADIO TRANSFORMER.

Heretofore, the choke coil has not been used to any extent because it required a good volume of input before it will respond. This means that a straight choke coil coupled amplifier will not give as good results on distant stations as the transformer coupled type.

In the amplifier described here, the first stage is coupled with an ordinary low radio transformer. This builds up the detector input, so that a choke coil coupling may be used in the second stage.

The result is an amplifier that combines volume with reproduction of the detector tube output.

For the choke coil, the secondary of an old audio-frequency transformer may be used, the primary connections being untouched. An old Ford spark coil may also be used. A .005 mfd. mica condenser is inserted between the grid of the second tube and the end of the secondary. One of the filament is connected through a variable resistance (an ordinary variable grid leak will do nicely).

In tuning in, try the first amplifier tube first, and note the signal strength. Then try the second tube. If you find that the signals are not much stronger, or are distorted, switch the grid leak on the first tube. This should clear up the signals and allow them to be heard with about perfect quality and excellent volume.

WHAT IS NEEDED

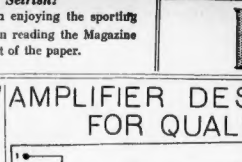
If you build the amplifier as a separate unit, you will need the following parts:

One panel, 7x10.
One cabinet, 7x10.
Two rheostats.
One single circuit jack.
Two double circuit jacks.
One fixed condenser (mica) or about .005 mfd. capacity.
Two low ratio transformers, or one transformer and a Ford spark coil.
One grid leak, variable.
Necessary screws, nuts, brackets, binding posts, etc.

In the diagram shown herewith, the two posts marked "P" are the input from the detector tube. The battery posts are shown below.

If you like to make over an old amplifier, the changing of a wire or two and the addition of the fixed condenser and the grid leak will easily effect the alteration.

AMPLIFIER DESIGNED FOR QUALITY



TWO STAGE AUDIO AMPLIFIER

Clear and faithful reproduction rather than just volume was sought for in the two stage audio amplifier shown above, although it has a good "kick" at the same time. The first stage uses an ordinary low ratio audio-frequency transformer (T), while the second stage is coupled with a choke coil (L). The latter may be nothing more than the secondary of another audio-frequency transformer, or a Ford spark coil may be used. A variable grid leak is used on the last tube. J1 and J3 are double-circuit jacks, while J3 is a single circuit jack.

The Listener

Cooping men up in State's prisons fails to affect their ability as musicians as witness the fine concerts given occasionally by the Missouri State Prison orchestra, broadcast by station WOS. And that recalls to mind that Massachusetts State Prison has a fine band also. Maybe one of our three local stations will let us hear it soon.

Rhode Island must have more dance occasions to the square mile than any other State in the union. Every night I tune in on WJAR after 10:30 I seem to get a different one. But they're all good and all worth hearing more than once.

I wonder how many fans recognize the voice of the announcer for WTAT, Edison's new station in Boston? He is Jack Cadigan, well-known hereabouts as a song writer, amateur show director and entertainer extraordinary.

We have the guy who calls 'em "tomahtoes," and the guy who says "ravvalion," and who calls a steam radiator a "raddiator," and no doubt we'll hear some day from the person who insists on calling radio "radidio." A quick death, though not too painless, should be his.

"I'll tune in Philadelphia any time some broadcasting station in that city gets from Daly to breathe some of his Italian and Irish poems into the microphone.

U. S. RADIO FANS ARE BOUND BY NO RED TAPE

Listen Gratis, While Receivers "Sealed" or Banned in Some Countries

American radio listeners should appreciate the excellent broadcasting rendered in this country, the lack of taxes, licenses and the red tape which hampers fans abroad, delaying development in general.

Over here in the "Land of the Free" one of the chief delights of a fan is his ability to tune in on any of the 538 stations broadcasting. But in Australia, for example, receivers are "sealed" by the government, after being set to pick up only the station to which a fee is paid. Australian broadcasters are permitted to charge whatever they please, and there are not many stations, which eliminates any great variety of programs, even though fans could afford several subscriptions.

In Ireland radio interest is described "as awakening," and the formation of a radio association in Dublin is announced; This organization will attempt to foster the interests of its members and cooperate with governmental authorities. The association plans to open a broadcasting station, experiment extensively, publish a periodical and aid in reducing restrictions on reception.

INTEREST IN SPAIN.

Weekly broadcasting of concert programs on a wave length of 400 meters by the station at the Ecole Modele de Telegraphie in Marseilles has begun in France. This broadcasting will be under the special patronage of the Petit Provencal, a local daily newspaper, acting in conjunction with the International Congress of Wireless Telegraphy.

Although no broadcasting stations have as yet been established in Spain, there is considerable interest of late in radio sets of sufficient power to receive broadcasts from Paris, The Hague, Berlin and London.

The public broadcasting stations in Chile are innovations. One station is owned by the Chile Radio Company, in Santiago, and the other is the property of Antonio C. Bese, of Vina del Mar. As a rule nothing but phonographic entertainment is transmitted, for about 200 receiving sets in Chile. The broadcasting of instrumental concerts, as well as current news, will be undertaken soon.

In the Argentine, radio is more popular, and has developed further. In Buenos Aires alone there are estimated to be at least 9,000 amateur receiving sets. Practically all of the well-known types have been introduced there.

Radio in Sweden has been controlled by the King. It is believed that with a decrease in fees for transmitting and receiving stations, greater interest will be aroused in broadcasting.

A combination seeking to control broadcasting in Sweden has not yet succeeded in obtaining an exclusive concession, although it has received licensing and reduced the fees from listeners-in.

Three hundred licenses have been granted by the King, and fifty applications are pending.

The plan now being considered includes the erection of many small broadcasting stations by the Government instead of a few large stations.

To date, there are five broadcasting stations in Sweden, but communication is also to be had with stations in Copenhagen, Berlin, London, and Manchester.

In Mexico an increasing number of requests for establishing both transmitting and receiving stations has been received by the Director General of Telegraphs. Broadcasting stations are now subject to a tax of 100 pesos per annum, and receiving sets are taxed 5 pesos a year. There are now only three broadcasting stations, all operating from Mexico City.

The Polish Government also requires radio users to file their papers. A new bill is before the Diet, under which amateur or privately-owned receiving sets must be authorized with government supervision. But little radio manufacturing is done in Poland, the output of the single factory being taken up by the national army, so fans do not have much choice.

The Radio Stude, the first official Berlin broadcasting station, began operation at Christmas, with an excellent program and a "political" Christmas greeting from Chancellor Marx, advices from Berlin state. The broadcasts during the holidays carried recitations, vocal, instrumental and dance music far beyond the borders.

In Germany, the programs were received with much enthusiasm. Radio still has become a power in musicloving German circles, it is predicted. Classified music and operatic music predominated. The comparatively new American programs is interesting. The Radio Stude transmitted few song hits or dance numbers, but mostly folk solks and opera excerpts.

BANNED IN CHINA.

Chinese natives are prohibited from purchasing and operating radio receiving sets. The order states that such sales and operations are against the law and that offenders will be punished severely. Foreigners living in Chinese territory also come under this ban, and steps are being taken to prevent the sale of radio apparatus or its installation by Chinese living in foreign settlements. Foreign residents in the Hongkong colony use radio by special permit, however.

DON'T MAKE CRYSTAL SET OSCILLATE

It is poor policy to make your crystal set oscillate, because the strong plate currents will burn out the crystal where the cat's-whisker is touching it. Furthermore, more "B" battery current is used and thirdly, you cause interference by radiating. It is therefore bad to adjust the cat-whisker on your reflex set too often, because the minute it is removed from the crystal it may will oscillate (that is providing that it is working properly), consequently, the second the cat-whisker touches the crystal it will burn it out at that particular spot.

DOUG AND MARY ARE TO BROADCAST

Rounding out the list of distinguished individuals who have appeared before the microphone, Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks are scheduled to broadcast a few remarks from WJZ, the Radio Corporation station in New York, on March 12, at 8:15. It is reported that Mary and Doug suffered from radio stage fright until they saw the phonies on the speaker's table at the recent Thomas A. Edison luncheon.

Belgian Fan Curbs Metallic Ring in Radio Horns

A Belgian amateur, C. Dambal, is reported to be meeting with success in suppressing the metallic vibrations of loud speaker horns.

He makes use of a composition of pitch from Judea and paraffin, dipping the horn in this mixture. The horn is subsequently covered with a very uniform coat of a dark brown fluid.

Mr. Dambal states that the nasal quality of the horn is completely abolished and excellent quality is to be gotten from even poor horns.

CKCH TO COME ON THE AIR TONIGHT

Canada's Most Powerful Station to Broadcast on 435 Meters

The most powerful radio station in Canada, operated by the Canadian National Railways at Ottawa as the first of a chain across Canada, will come on the air this evening with a program of musical selections.

The new station expects to have a range beyond that of any station in Canada, due to its up-to-date equipment, the height of its aerial which stands on the roof of the Jackson Building and reaches 200 feet above the ground.

A novel arrangement in connection with this station, to insure clearer reception by listeners, is the distance between the studio and the operating room. Receiving sets frequently get the hum of the dynamos in connection with the program being broadcast, but in this station the studio is on the first floor and the operating room on the roof thus avoiding the hum.

The new station will skin CKCH and will broadcast on a wave of 435 meters. The latter is to be relayed by Station CHYC, Northern Electric Company Montreal on a wave length of 411 meters, so that radio listeners everywhere in Canada and Northern United States should have no difficulty in receiving the program.

The Wednesday evening programs will be of a serious nature, including music, addresses and possibly speeches in Parliament, while the Saturday evening program will be in a lighter vein.

Station CKCH will transmit news items as a part of its program, linking up with the radio receiving sets which have been installed in the observation library cars of Canadian National Railway's transcontinental trains.

Helpful Hints

Contrary to common belief the telephone can be put to good use in radio. A wire can be fastened under the nickel-plated screw that holds the transmitter in position and run to a .00025 fixed condenser. Then connect the other side of the fixed condenser to the antenna post on the receiving set. Results are surprising. The local stations will come in as loud as an outdoor aerial. Of course, the better to do on a good outdoor antenna, but it is also the next best thing to it. A word of caution should be given to the fan in this experiment with the telephone company. That is, use a mica condenser in series in the set, and not one of wire, or else you will disturb the operator. With the condenser you will not affect the line in the least.

When drilling a hole for a variocoupler, variometer or variable condenser, it is a good practice to make the hole for the shaft larger than it should be. For instance, say the shaft is one-quarter-inch, then make the hole for it three-eighths of an inch. This larger hole will not only prevent the disc from wobbling in many instances, but it will also make the condenser run smoother, for the shaft often touches the panel at various points.

If you want to compute the natural wavelength of your antenna system in a simple manner, add the length of the aerial (one wire) to that of the lead-in, then add the total to the length of the wire leading to the ground connection. After you have obtained this sum, multiply the result by four and divide by nine. The result will be the natural wavelength of the antenna and ground. (Of course, this is only approximate since the effective height, the number of wires, surrounding objects, etc., may change the actual wavelength. For example, assume that an aerial is 100 feet long, a thirty-five foot lead-in, and ten foot wire leading to the ground. We add them up and obtain 145 feet as the total. Multiplying by four we get 580 as the result and by dividing by three we find that the natural wavelength is about 193 meters.

It is best to put the grid variometer of a short wave regenerative set in the filament lead, or grid return, as it is commonly called. As a rule it is placed in series with the grid of the tube, but the drawback to this method is that there is no capacity when the hand is placed on the grid variometer dial. When it is inserted on the filament side of the grid return this will not be noticeable.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. F. X. MAHONEY, Boston Health Commissioner.

NOWADAYS almost everyone talks about vitamines. Many persons who before the vitamine discoveries were made in the laboratory were perfectly healthy with their regular, natural diets are now uneasy for fear their food is lacking in some of the essentials.

Sherman and Smith, two unquestioned authorities, in a recent review of the present status of vitamines in science and practice, declared that on the basis of our present knowledge, a diet in which the best use is made of our ordinary foods will give little need to use vitamines in any other form.

Dr. Mahoney.

Science so far has learned little of the quantitative efficiency of the so-called vitamine C.

It has become common knowledge that not only the traditionally used fruit juices but also many green stuffs have considerable anticorbutic potency, that is, they contain the so-called vitamine C. Some of the highly potent anticorbutic foods, such as cabbage, turnips and tomatoes, are readily available and so well tolerated that one need not search among more expensive products for protective material. The efficiency of the citrus fruits is widely recognized.

So much misconception and confusion exist in the minds of those not especially conversant with the subject, about the effect of heat and culinary or preservative processes on the anticorbutic vitamine, that it is important to consider the latest findings as they are reported.

The decrease in anticorbutic potency that milk experiences on heating under certain conditions has too often been translated without reservation to all anticorbutic foods and finally to all vitamines. Vitamine C is, in truth, much more readily destroyed than is vitamine B by both oxidation and heating, but the rate of destruction depends on a variety of conditions, including the duration of the heating, the opportunity for oxidative changes and the reaction of the medium.

These facts are reflected in the statement of the better preservation of freshness and anticorbutic value in cold storage than in storage at ordinary temperature, and the serious loss of this property when food is kept hot for a long time between cooking and serving.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

I am troubled with a skin disease known as psoriasis. I have it on my scalp, elbows and knees, but mostly on my scalp in two places near each ear, about the size of a silver dollar. I have had this trouble for the past ten years, and have used many ointments containing salicylic acid, which just smooths it down by taking the scales off for the time being. Would you advise me what tonic for the blood or water to go to have it cured? E. J. B.

Psoriasis is one of the most baffling skin diseases known. Yes, a certain application which may be found to allay symptoms satisfactorily may, after a while, lose its power to do so. The only advice local treatment will have to be found. Probably consultation with the physician is likely to give the most satisfactory results. The feeding of iron, whatever one may do in regard to his diet seems to make no difference. As a preliminary to experiment with so readily available a remedy as we well tolerated that one need not search among more expensive products for protective material. The efficiency of the citrus fruits is widely recognized.

In answer to inquiry of G. A., Boston, as to the address of a certain physician, I wish to inform him that there is no such physician listed in the medical directory.

Would a bad tooth cause a swelling or lump in the knee? M. B.

Very likely.

I have catarrh of the head and throat. My nostrils are so inflamed I fear my doctor cannot cure me. Can you tell me the best specialist in this line in Boston? A. A.

I suspect you have either diseased tonsils or a chronic infection in some of the sinuses of the head. You should see a specialist. There are many good ones in this city. Why not get your family physician to recommend one?

"Slackers' Paradise"

Editor Boston American:

How can any red-blooded, true American ex-service man belong to an organization called the Anti-Bonus League? That any ex-service man who opposes a bonus from our wealthy government after giving their lives and their all when slackers—foreigners—etc., stayed home and reaped the harvest of blood from ten to thirty dollars a day where soldiers got but $1 and hell along with it, must be slackers' paradise soldiers. I did not serve in the American but enlisted in the Canadian army when rejected for service in American army. But I'm here to say that any soldier that served for his country deserves a reward—a national bonus.

JOSEPH DELAHANTA.

Poetry and Oil

Editor Boston American:

Your paper certainly deserves credit for being unbiased, unprejudiced and impartial in dealing with the facts laid before the people. I enjoyed immensely your cartoon of the Republican "Teapot" and the Democratic "Oil Can." I cannot refrain from adding this:

"Twixt the "Teapot" and the "Oil Can"
The difference is so droll;
They both sure get the money,
And leave the people in the hole.

S. P. NORSTROM.

Here's a Funny One

Editor Boston American:

Here's a funny one. While the Federal Investigation, the professional disturbers and business meddlers of the government, and the Chicago International Harvester Company, the president of the Harvester Company is invited to and sits on the Presidential reporting. It finish of, farm- relief of the farmer—their own subscription not being barred.

Here's another phase of the Teapot Dome it reminds one of.

In polite society or police annals an ugly name might be applied to the incident.

THE HELPING HAND

Gives Baby Carriage

Editor Helping Hand:

I am writing to you regarding a baby carriage I wish to give to some poor mother. I would only be too happy to have Mrs. M. F. have my carriage. Please have her communicate with me at once. MRS. R. J. B.

Thank you. As we have already send Mrs. M. F. word, perhaps some one who wished to give her a carriage, we are sending you the address of Mrs. F. as she is in need of, needed mother, who finds it impossible to buy one.

Needs Baby Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

This is the first time I ever asked for help. I am the mother of five little ones. I fell through defective steps, leaving me with a sprained back and injured leg, just before my fourth child was born, and have not been well since. My fifth little baby hasn't been well since born and is at the Baby Hospital. The father works outdoors and feels so cold without heavy underwear or an overcoat. He wears size 42 and size 7 in shoe. The children's ages are girls eight and six years old, and boys three years and nineteen months. The baby at the hospital is four months. I wish I could have a carriage, as the nineteen-months baby isn't walking yet.. I will not ask for myself, as I feel sorry I had to ask for my husband and little ones. MRS. M. O'N.

Very Poor and in Need

Editor Helping Hand:

I am very poor and in need. As you know, I have been laid off and am only working two nights a week. I have four children, boys nine, seven and five and a girl two, and I have to stitch for them or half the time fire. Their father is sick and I cannot find any work. Two of the children have been home from school for two weeks because they have no clothes to wear. Will you try to help me? MRS. M. H.

SELLING Fish, Not Catching Fish, Is the Principal Problem of the New England Fish Industry.

BOSTON AMERICAN
LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND
BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1924

Next Wednesday—What New England Is Doing in Handling Her Part of America's Educational Problem.

Minute Men, What's the Matter With Our "Sacred Cod"? Why Do We Import Fish by the Ton?

In the annals of red-blooded men of courage his name occupies a place near the top.

His dauntless spirit, intrepidity and bulldog tenacity in the face of almost insurmountable obstacles have made him known and respected throughout the world.

With German submarines spouting death and destruction in our coast waters, the President asked our fishermen to produce more fish for home consumption in order that there might be no lack of beef for the boys in the trenches.

The menace of the submarines was intensely real, and no less than fourteen New England fishing boats were sent to the bottom by their torpedoes.

Nevertheless the fishermen of Boston and Gloucester in 1917 produced a total of 228,209,788 pounds, and in 1918 made a record landing of 247,083,594 pounds of fish.

A conservative estimate of the contribution of the fishermen of all other New England ports, each of those two years, would add 50,000,000 pounds of sea food.

Their spirit is as dauntless today, despite years of hardship, privation and death, as it was in 1812 when they formed the nucleus of America's first navy.

THEY risk THEIR lives on every voyage. What do WE do with what they produce?

Throughout the world New England is known as the land of the codfish.

We have a cape named for the cod. The "sacred cod" at the Massachusetts State House proclaims to the world our supposed supremacy in the fishing industry.

Yet facts show that CANADA IS MORE WORTHY OF THE TITLE OF CODFISH LAND THAN NEW ENGLAND.

Our neighbor to the North, with a population not one-tenth as large as ours, produces one-half as much of this food fish as this country.

And this means fish which reaches the consumer.

Canada's Atlantic Coast production of the cod family, as shown by the latest statistics of the United States Bureau of Fisheries, far exceeds that of New England. Here is the comparison:

Species	CANADA Pounds	NEW ENGLAND Pounds
Cod	255,944,600	84,917,535
Haddock	56,457,400	89,405,609
Hake	24,464,900	22,855,788
Pollock	22,796,300	25,009,639
Total	359,663,200	222,188,571

This table, it will be borne in mind, relates simply to Canada's Atlantic Coast production of cod.

It shows that she handles almost three times as much cod product as does New England and that our only appreciable leadership over Canada is in the haddock, or cheaper catch.

Now comes a most surprising fact.

Despite the great increase in population in the two countries and the high cost of living, the market for our fish, best and cheapest of table necessities when served rightly, has remained practically stationary.

More fish of all kinds is produced in both countries than can be readily marketed.

SO SELLING FISH, NOT CATCHING FISH, IS OUR PRINCIPAL PROBLEM.

If the New England fish industry is to hold its own in competition with that of the Pacific Coast, Canada, Great Britain, Norway, Sweden, Holland, Denmark and Japan, our New England fish salesmen must be as intrepid and as versatile in their marketing campaigns as our fishermen are on their fishing trips.

The yearly landing of fresh fish at Boston exceeds 100,000,000 pounds. Of that amount 56 per cent. is consumed in Massachusetts, and only 23 per cent. in Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York and Pennsylvania.

How to create a larger demand? That is the question.

It ought not to be so much harder to keep our Western markets supplied with fresh caught fish than it is for the Western packers to keep New England supplied with freshly killed beef.

We never have made any great effort to develop distant markets for our fish.

There IS an answer to the problem of delivering New England's fish products to consumers in the Middle West in fresh condition.

It is a matter of ways and means, and New England genius always has found ways and means to solve her problems.

If we give it up, our friends on the Pacific Coast will pre-empt and develop that great market.

A recent survey of the fresh fish trade in Chicago, Louisville, St. Paul and Minneapolis disclosed that not a single specimen of the New England cod family was represented among the so-called popular kinds of commercial fish.

More significant even was the discovery that in some of the fish markets of the Southern and Middle Western cities there was an undercurrent of sentiment against our cod products.

BUT MORE STARTLING STILL IS THE FACT THAT LAST YEAR NEARLY 200 CARLOADS OF HALIBUT AND SALMON WERE SHIPPED FROM THE PACIFIC COAST TO BOSTON.

How long will it be before New England, the largest fish producing section in the United States, finds herself up against a competition which will cripple her fish industry, not only in the markets of the Middle West, but also in her home markets?

Why should there be a New England market for that fish product, when twenty-eight fishing schooners of the Gloucester port alone, in 1923, landed 5,027,000 pounds of halibut?

That catch was 812,000 pounds below the halibut haul of 1922. What does that mean? *

We have better halibut and better equipment for handling it on the Atlantic coast than our competitors on the Pacific.

The record for 1921, the latest that has been verified, shows that, in that year, New England imports in pounds of cured and preserved cod, haddock, hake and pollock were 55,257,759, the value of which was $3,486,070, while the exports were, in pounds, 18,482,227, valued at $1,752,393.

AND THIS EXCESS OF IMPORTS OVER EXPORTS HAS BEEN MAINTAINED STEADILY FOR THE LAST TEN YEARS.

There is something radically wrong about such a condition as that.

The United States Commissioner of Fisheries says that the fish industry is one of New England's most important assets.

We cannot expect our fishermen to brave great dangers and hardships and come back from their runs to Georges Bank and the other fishing grounds without realizing an adequate profit on their toil.

But it is a matter of fact that, time and time again, they have operated at an actual loss. They have returned with enormous catches for which they could find no demand because of limited market.

We have a right to expect that our fish here in Boston will cost much less than it does in inland cities, but we know that when dealers have to give it away, something is radically wrong.

Stabilizing through up-to-date methods of merchandising is the great need of the New England fisheries.

The logic of the situation is that, inasmuch as our fish supply is inexhaustible and our men and equipment the best, we must seek more aggressively the large potential markets of the Middle West and exploit more effectively the superior qualities of our products.

We must make people believe that we can furnish a tasty and nutritious food at prices which will help them materially to reduce the cost of living.

What is the best way to do this?

Is it through a co-operative marketing plan?

There is much to recommend such a thought, but a thorough and attractive merchandising plan seems a better method.

The basis of good merchandising is education. There must first be created a better and bigger liking for the product and then the demand for it must be pushed with intelligence and vigor. There must be great care in handling and packing. Shipments must be regulated and supervised so that fish will arrive at their markets in the best possible condition.

Wholesale distribution and the arousing of interest in the retail trade to display and dress fish to the best advantage are essential features.

The California Fruit Growers' Exchange never would have amounted to anything unless it had been backed by an intelligent and appealing policy; not for the exploiting of their product one year, but for every year, in ever changing and attracting forms.

The New England States comprise the great fisheries district of America, but are we taking advantage of our opportunities?

The number engaged in the industry in New England is about 30,000.

Compared with 1915 this represents a decrease of more than 6,000, or 17 per cent.

The total investment is about $40,000,000 as compared to $18,000,000 in 1915, an increase of about 80 per cent.

The yield of recent years has averaged about 468,000,000 pounds, valued at a little less than $20,000,000.

Compared with 1915 there was a net decrease of about 13,000,000 pounds, but a net increase of about $5,600,000 in the value of the product.

Considering the increase in the population and the higher prices paid by consumers the last few years this is a sorry showing in dollars and cents for fifteen years of hard and dangerous work.

Poor merchandising and lack of effort or misdirected effort in market expansion is mostly to blame.

To say, in official reports, that the outlook for Massachusetts fisheries is encouraging by no means tells the real story.

It is encouraging, however, to learn that the fishermen's union, composed of the men who go down to the banks, is studying the question of how the catches can be disposed of in larger quantities in the markets and smaller ones on the dumps.

It is encouraging to know that they have risen above the romance of fishing and are considering the question of reward from a strictly business aspect.

It is encouraging to learn that they have asked the Boston Chamber of Commerce to make a special study of the fish industry, have submitted their plans and have expressed willingness to take their chances on a co-operative basis.

And it is also encouraging to know that the dealers at the Boston Fish Pier, the big wholesalers, have awakened to the necessity of fighting for the extension of their fish markets and have agreed that—

They must employ better merchandising methods.

They must carry their message to the country.

Since Bartholomew Gosnold's famous trip from old England to New England's shores, in 1602, stories of the daring and the courage of the men who have gone down to the banks from Gloucester and Boston have held high place on the list of best sellers.

Naturalized Yankees are proving themselves as worthy in every way as the native stock.

The newcomers are imbued with an ambition to emulate the deeds of that hardy race of men of Marblehead and Gloucester and Boston and Portsmouth and Portland and Bath and Newport and Block Island and New London and Saybrook, which, for more than three centuries gave to New England fishing first rank in production.

We can never sing the praises of New England fishermen too much, but in all conscience it is about time we had a chance to sing the praises of the fish dealers of New England.

It is time they realized their opportunities and advantages. Here is the market distribution of New England fish products:

		Per capita Pound consumption of fish
Massachusetts	56%	1.6
New York	19%	.2
Pennsylvania	5%	.06
Connecticut	4%	—
New Hampshire	2%	.06
Maine	1%	.15
Maryland	1%	.09
Delaware	1%	.05
Vermont, less than	1%	.3*

Illinois handles less than 1% and no New England fish is sold in the markets of any other States of the country.

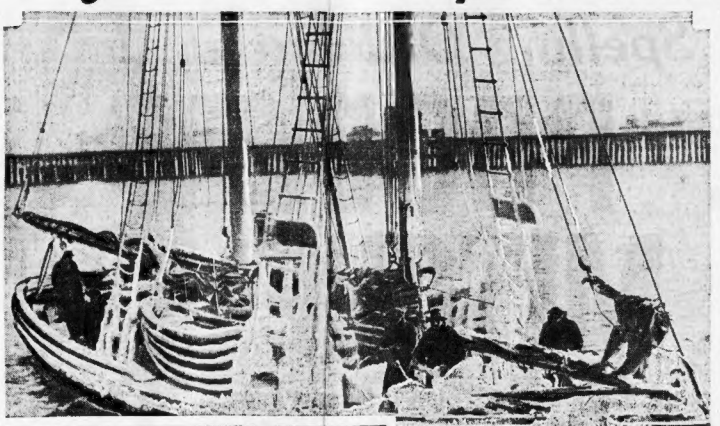
New England waters swarm with the sweetest of fish foods. The finest lobsters and clams are here.

All we need to win that prosperity, which the Atlantic billows roar at us and the seas intend to be our portion, is to learn how to create the demand and then how to meet it from the abundant sources of supply on our very shores.

This fish business needs MORE NEW ENGLAND CONSCIENCE—a combination of moral sense and better business sense.



Our fishermen trawl the Atlantic for the best of food fish, but our fish salesmen do not travel the country for customers.

What is the result?

Under-production caused by under-consumption.

Eat More Fish should be New England's slogan. For despite the fact most of our fish is consumed here, our per capita consumption in Massachusetts is but 19 pounds, compared to 56 pounds in the British Isles and 100 pounds in Japan.
